CANADIAN MUSICIAN — Dr. Healey Willard of Toronto is one of Canada's top musicians. Best known as a prolific composer, he also is an outstanding organist and teacher. He was born in England Oct. 12, 1880, and came to Canada in 1913, holding posts with the University of Toronto and the Conservatory until his retirement in 1950. (CP PHOTO)

THE EXPERTS Say...

By KAY REX
 Canadian Press Staff Writer

TALKING OF SHOES—Warm weather means most women are doffing high-heeled pumps for flat play-shoes. Food specialists frown on this.

One Toronto chiropodist says high-heeled pumps cause the muscles in the calf of the leg to shorten. Hence, a sudden drop to flat-heeled shoes may result in "leg pains." He recommends a gradual "stepping down." First medium heels, then flat ones.

Leather-soled shoes are the most comfortable on city pavements. Incidentally, the foot expert thinks platform soles are a good idea. He says they're easy on the feet, providing added protection against uneven ground and pebbles.

Afternoon is regarded by most foot experts as the best time of the day to fit shoes. If your foot tends to swell in hot weather it will be at its largest in the afternoon.

Finally, different makes of shoes and different lasts mean you never know what size shoe you take until you have your foot measured. A good shoe salesman will measure the foot both when you are sitting and when you stand.

"When the weight is on the feet they elongate one-sixth of an inch," said the expert. "Weak arches may cause the foot to elongate even more than that."

BAREFOOT FOR HEALTH—Go barefoot if you're spending a country or sea-side holiday. The experts say this is fine summer foot treatment if you're in a position to do it.

LOWER HEELS—The Canadian Shoe Information Bureau reports from Montreal that heels

C.A.A.E. DIRECTOR — New director of the Canadian Association for Adult Education is Dr. J. Roby Kidd, 35, appointed at the association's annual meeting in Toronto. He succeeded Dr. E. A. Corbett, director since the association's founding in 1930. Dr. Kidd has been associate director since 1947 and has organized the Canadian Film and Radio Awards. will be lower this fall. Certainly in dressy shoes, the three-inch heel will remain, but for everyday wear there is a trend toward the 1 1/2-inch.

Closed toes and closed heels will push last season's sandals right out of the picture. Pumps with circular or rounded throats will be popular.

Platforms for the most part are lower although in dressy old heights. While there will be fewer ankle-straps nevertheless straps remain a style factor.

REPTILE FOR WEAR—Calf, suede and kid, together with nylon mesh and even flannel, will be the popular fall materials for shoes. At the same time reptiles will be shown even more than last year. Natural snake-skin has been combined with black suede, green or brown suede with multicolor trims.

Black is the most popular color for fall. There also will be green shoes, red shoes and some grey.

Health Department officials at Ottawa also have something to say about shoes. "Wear shoes that suit the occasion," they urge. "For hiking, be sure that your shoes are comfortable, with low heels and firm soles. Keep your high heels for dress occasions."

High Life Lurks Behind Drabness In East Berlin

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

BERLIN (AP) — A rugged, vodka-powered night life awaits the East Berliner with a fat pocketbook and the right political connections.

For the run-of-the-mill resident things are drab. The Socialist-Unity (Communist) party in East Berlin manages things with an apparently austere and moral eye.

But scratch a highly paid comrade and chances are you'll find quite a night life man underneath.

The party controls the public, so the matter of stretching the closing hour for East Berlin night clubs is easy for the Red hierarchy.

A semicircle of night life is permitted in two or three East Berlin night spots. These places are closed at 2 a.m. by stern Volkspolizei (People's Police) men. The East Berliner who scraped up enough for a brief fling goes home to prepare for his morning headache.

But after 2 a.m. the party hierarchy and the free spenders who "know a guy" take over.

Socialist-Unity members who don't partake themselves turn their heads at these bourgeois manifestations by party comrades.

They have one rule: don't kick up your heels where everybody can see.

REMEMBER PARTY STATUS — But even the late-stayers pay tribute to their party status as proletarians. They nearly always toss away their ties and collars so show that they're really just workers relaxing a little.

There is no such thing as a girlie show in any East Berlin night spot. Anyway, not until after 2 a.m. Then the vodka flows freely for the select and the roof is the limit.

Only one East Berlin spot pretends to offer cabaret entertainment to the casual customer. This is the Major Club, a place a few sizes larger than a phone booth and always jammed to the hilt. They have a couple of sedately clothed dancers and a tired acrobat or two.

But West Berliners taking advantage of the mark ratio in their favor sometimes go and

East Berliners with enough set aside for a jolt of vodka help fill up the place.

High party members go all-out on the bourgeois side and even have gambling parties, but it's all on the quiet, of course. The big things after 2 a.m. are the vodka, the girls and the music. Some work-bound East Berliners have heard "decadent, capitalist music" desecrating the Communist early morning air.
