Yesterday's column I advised my self-confident Mr. Muzzy to let his partners play the hands whenever possible.

Lesson number two—

is too quick to bid no

trump.

A higher percentage of

are played at no trump.

You will find some suit bid on your own cards, maybe your partner will get to

trump first.

Mr. Muzzy's hand

Mr. Muzzy

jumped to two no

trump over his partner's one bid. He just about had the card strength required for a call. The trouble was that he effectively prevented Mr.

from playing the hand.

Mr. Masters practically makes an error.

much better it would be if Mr. Muzzy had bid

diamond. Then Mr. Masters

have lost no time in bidding no trump and eventually have ended up as de-

clar three-odd in that dement. Of course it would have been made.

is the way Mr. Muzzy

lost the play. West opened with best heart, the trey, diamond's queen won. As

Mr. Muzzy did not take into account his tricks. You can see that he has one spade, three hearts, three diamonds (after losing to the diamond king) and two clubs—nine in all.

At the second trick a small club was led to the ace in the closed hand. Now Mr. Muzzy led the queen of diamonds. West did not cover and the queen was permitted to ride, winning the trick. Another diamond was led to the ace and the closed hand

was reached again with the ace of spades. At this point Mr.

Muzzy led the jack of diamonds,

West winning with the king.

What happened to the nine tricks we counted a few moments ago? We still have eight,

but the ninth one is hopelessly buried in Mr. Muzzy's hand with no way to get to it.

At trick two the ace of diamonds was the play, followed by the six of diamonds and a continuation of that suit until the king is knocked out. With that play the third diamonds winner is set up while there are still plenty of entries to the South hand.

KNOCKED DOWN
BUT WON FIGHT

NEW YORK (CP)—Game

strong Rex Layne picked himself

off the floor, took everything clouting Bob Satterfield could dish out and then knocked out the Chicago fighter in 2:56 of the eighth round in Madison Square

Garden last night.

Layne, a 9-5 underdog, outweighed his rival 190½ to 180½ pounds. Cropped for an eight count in the first and battered

all over the ring, the 20-year-old slugger from Lewiston, Utah, came roaring back with an attack that brought thunderous applause from the crowd.

EASY ONCE YOU know how. See? Showing it's not so hard to "make things" from leather are from the left, Frank Barton, Gordon Morrison, Roly Miles, instructor, Wilfrid Valpy and Duane Loughlan. Gordon and Wilfrid are Daily News carriers.

Boys Adept in Wallet Making—Market Needed

A wallet's first purpose usually is to hold money but to the teen-age boys in Roly Miles' leatherwork classes at the Civic Centre it means something different. There a finished wallet in yellow morocco or brown genuine cowhide is an emblem of proud accomplishment.

About two dozen boys take advantage of these classes held on Monday and Wednesday afternoons and evenings.

Tools for the work are supplied by the Centre although handcrafters are encouraged to purchase their own so they can carry on projects at home.

"Some of these boys are very artistic," said Roly, displaying a variety of jobs completed, such as embossed loose-leaf covers, moccasins and key-cases. "I think it takes working with hands to show what's really in the boys."

Most of the projects for this class come in kits and are made up according to specifications. "Thonging" is the lacing around the edges, a painstaking job which requires much patience.

"But it's fun," vouched Eugene Nelson, proudly revealing a key-case just completed for a gift. Most of the items made there are for gifts, said the boys. "But I sold a couple of wallets at Christmas," chimed in Gordon Morrison. All, however, deplored the lack of demanding markets for their products.

"Gosh, if we could only sell 'em, we could go into business," said one.

But these enterprising spirits were dampened when Roly, with a grin, said his job didn't include setting up capitalists in business.

On the whole the boys are well-behaved, said the instructor. "They have to be," he added, "or else they are just shoed out." That doesn't mean, of course, that the classes are conducted in a "school" atmosphere. A bit of "sky-larking" is natural when boys get together.

"We just don't let it get out of hand,"

INSTRUCTOR HAS

"KNOW HOW"

Their instructor has had varied experience in hobbycraft. At the Pacific National Exhibition, he was for a time handicraft demonstrator for a Vancouver leather firm. His versatility includes woodwork, knotting and braiding, and even sewing, although he'd like to draw the line there.

"Sure could use a few volunteers showing little ladies how to sew," he said, pointing to a "housewife" which had been made in his class Friday afternoon by a six-year-old.

But he turned serious when emphasizing the necessity for young people to have an opportunity to do things with their hands.

"Such an outlet for their enthusiasm often takes the place of something harmful that they might do," Roly was emphatic when he said how "constructive work" could so easily replace "destruction."

May Revive Sea Cadets

Before anything can be done about re-activating Prince Rupert's defunct Sea Cadet Corps, a reorganization meeting of the Navy League of Canada, Prince Rupert branch, will be held March 30, it was decided Thursday night by the League.

At the general meeting—open to all interested in formation of a new Sea Cadet Corps and further function of a Navy League here—an election of officers will take place, with appointment of special committees.

ray.. Reflects and Reminisces

Lunch, counter criticism of provincial hospital affairs cannot be said to offer much of constructional value. Nevertheless, what is said displays a large and most ingenious variety of abusive terms, heard even with the steady playing of canned music.

Sixty tons of snow will be shipped from Norway to England in time for a ski-jumping competition at the end of March. Western Canada will cheerfully send along a hundred million tons on a free basis, providing the Attlee government take care of all transportation charges and other incidental expenses.

For the first time, General MacArthur has made use of the word "stalemate" describing the situation at the Korean front. Perhaps it's the truth and will start people thumbing through the dictionary. There are too many casualties to be in doubt about the exact meaning of anything.

The Prime Minister recently addressed the National Liberal Federation's Advisory Council. Mr. St. Laurent, one notes, spoke more as party leader than premier. It's a fine distinction—almost too delicate for these rough and tumble, semi-vulgar days.

In the matter of facial foliage, it would appear (this is from Hollywood) that moustaches are coming back. One reason is military mobilization, but then, boys, soon or late, feeling the urge to look manly, let the upper lip alone. The reaction is here.

But speaking of hair on the face and all that sort of thing, here's something you can call real news. Plenty who live in or around Prince Rupert have suffered from sileosis. It is a serious affliction, particularly among mining men. Much mischief can come from the inhaling of coal dust. Cease shaving and grow whiskers. The biggest and thickest beard the better. In other words, according to those who profess to know, the greater the security.

Pulp Workers' Union Formed

Mel Davis was elected president of the International Brotherhood of Pulp and Paper Mills Workers on Wednesday night.

Other officers are:

Vice-President, Angus MacPhee.

Corresponding Secretary, William Halliwell.

Financial secretary and treasurer, Arthur Lockwood.

Trustees—A. Ogilvie, Richard Holmes and John Humphrey.

Bargaining Committee—Mel Davis, Arthur Lockwood and George Ewing.

The local union will represent the operating workers at the pulp mill of Columbia Cellulose at Watson Island.

Is Jailed for Drunken Driving

Although no injuries were sustained when two cars collided at Conrad Street and Hays Cove Avenue at 7:30 Thursday morning, Larry Ryan of Port Simpson was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated. Ryan, driver of a car in which were two other passengers, was proceeding down Conrad Street, turning onto Hays Cove Avenue, when his car collided with another car, driven by William Norton, 1425 11th Avenue East, which was turning onto Conrad Street from Hays Cove Avenue.

Police say extensive damage was done to both cars.

Ryan was sentenced to 10 days imprisonment by Magistrate W. D. Vance in city police court yesterday.

George Evans of Prince Rupert, who has been serving in the United Nations forces in Korea all winter, met a brother of Rev. C. L. Lomas, well known Anglican clergyman and missionary of Prince Rupert. The meeting was of mutual interest, for it gave opportunity to discuss British Columbia and Prince Rupert.
