

Sam Snead Pro Champ

OAKMONT, Pa. — Sam Snead, West Virginia silky-stroking hill billy, climaxed one of the most spectacular sub-par strokes in golf history Tuesday to another, Walter Jenkins of Franklin, Michigan, 7 and 6 for his third professional golf association championship.

It was the second worst defeat recorded in thirty-three Professional Golf Association finals, being outranked only by the humiliating 8 and 7 licking Snead took from Paul Runyan in 1938.

Ben Hogan, who decided his legs would no longer carry him in this event, trounced Mike Turnesa 7 and 6 in 1948.

When Snead closed the door on the popular pug-nosed battler from Michigan on the thirtieth hole, he was 22 under par for 166 match play holes over the Oakmont course whose par 37-35-72 has withstood prolonged assaults for years.

Fred Scradden, at today's weekly luncheon of the Prince Rupert Rotary Club, gave a report on a recent regional conference in Nanaimo from which he returned yesterday. There was also an autobiographical talk by Harold Thom, a new member. President A. B. Brown was in the chair.

Canada Golf Open Now On

TORONTO (CP)—A steady parade of traffic almost cluttered up the Mississauga Golf Club course while some 185 entrants in the 1951 Canadian open golf championship sharpened their shots.

The value of practice rounds was somewhat dissipated when Lou Ford of Briarcliffe, New York, who started pre-tournament peckers Monday with a sensational 61, wound up ten strokes higher Tuesday against a par 72 lay-out.

Earl Stewart of Dallas, Texas, went around in 65.

The competitive record for the course was set by Ben Hogan in 1941. The 1951 United States open winner is not here to aim at that mark again but the title still shapes up as a wide open affair.

The American contingent gets the nod.

Part of the coastal area of British Columbia is below sea level and intersected with canals.

Sport Shorts

The Canadian Sports Monthly says golf caddy "is becoming a lost art." An editorial quotes Jules Huot, professional at Laval Golf Club in Montreal, as saying: "Caddy needs to be re-sold among kids and parents. The whole affair must be organized as a modern employment system." Huot pointed out, the article continues, "that there are three types of caddy: 1) The regulars—everyday boys; 2) Week-end and holiday boys; 3) Schoolboys." Sports Monthly says Huot found that caddies at Laval made as high as $250 during vacation in period with bonuses of up to $1000 available to top caddies. A "wellness bonus" of 50 cents is also paid to caddies at Laval when they get wet in severe rain.

Veck Takes Over Browns

ST. LOUIS — Bill Veck, the man with the golden touch who combines fireworks with baseball, celebrated the Fourth of July holiday assured of ownership of the St. Louis Browns.

Veck, who brought winning baseball to Cleveland and crowds out to see it, clinched the deal Tuesday just twelve hours before the deadline he had set for acquiring 75 percent of the Browns' stock.

Wilt Clements, former St. Louis lightweight boxing champion, says poor management is responsible for many ring deaths. "It's a wonder there aren't more fatal accidents," he said. He said many promising young battlers are not properly handled, especially after bouts have begun. Clements, who also has acted as referee, said also that many young boxers are being booked in preliminary bouts and tossed into the ring with practically no help or support from their corner. Clements said, in that way, licence trainers and second men would be allowed to second fighters.

Why was Co-Insurance Started?

1. To control abuse of hospital benefits and therefore help relieve the bed shortage.
2. To keep premiums as low as possible by charging a small sum to those who actually receive benefit.

One of the main problems in any hospital insurance plan is that some people will abuse the benefits. They will go to hospital when they don't need to, and will stay longer than they should. This situation results in overcrowding of hospital beds, and increased costs. Co-insurance was started to help control this situation.

Co-insurance is designed to reduce the patient's length of stay in hospital and thereby make more beds available, and in the long run reduce costs. Unfortunately there are some people who, because they pay a premium, feel that they are owed something that they can only collect by occupying a hospital bed for as long as possible. People who pay fire insurance do not want a fire, nor when they pay automobile insurance do they hope for an accident. In each case, the insurance is protection against something which is hoped will never happen.

Hospital Insurance is protection against the expense of future illness. A protection, however, designed for those who are really sick and not for those people who wish to enter hospital on any excuse solely because they paid a premium. Hospital accommodation is intended primarily for those who need skilled professional care.

The co-insurance rate is determined by the hospital's public ward rate, and ranges from $2.00 to $3.50 a day, for the first ten days of hospital stay. The most any individual or family group (which includes all listed dependents) will pay in co-insurance for any single year is limited to ten days co-insurance charges. Regardless of how often a person (or his dependents) may go to hospital in any one year, only a total of ten days co-insurance may be charged.

In addition to controlling abuse, co-insurance will help to raise money to pay for the higher hospital costs. Without it, premiums would be even higher than they are today. With it, the highest standard of care can be given at the lowest reasonable cost to everyone by making a small charge to those persons actually receiving benefits.

It is the wish of the government to keep operating costs of the plan, and also premiums, as low as possible. Co-insurance will help to do this.

The next article in this series will deal with the question "What are the facts of the hospital bed situation?"

Be sure to read these messages. They deal with your Hospital Insurance plan—a plan which has already paid over $40,000,000 for more than 500,000 hospital cases, and is providing benefits for thousands more each month.
