French Taxicab Vets Ready

By PHILIP CLARKE

PARIS (AP)—Some of the grizzled veterans of Paris, famed first world war "Taxi Brigade" are ready to rush troops to the front again if necessary—this time for General Eisenhower.

"I'd even shut off my meter and drive for nothing," said 68-year-old Julien Baby. He's one of about 20 survivors of the brigade who still drive for a living.

The brigade—some 3,000 requisitioned cabs in all—won a place in history by driving 10,000 French troops to the Marne River battlefield in September, 1914, helping save Paris from the on-rushing Germans.

Do it again? "Sure we would," Baby told a reporter. "We follow our destiny."

But Baby, a proud little man with grey hair and a bristly mustache, said many young cabbies feel differently—they are Communists and they might drive the soldiers the other way.

Baby, a Catholic and a rugged individualist, faces Communism on the home front almost every day. Like most other anti-Communist Frenchmen, he is the butt of Red threats, ridicule and intimidation.

Many young cab drivers taunt him and other oldsters for refusing to join the Communist party or one of its unions. "They call us pigs and stupid old fools," he said. "But it is they who are imbeciles. Politics, bah!"

Baby still works a regular 10-hour day at the wheel of his 15-year-old Renault sedan and boasts he hasn't been sick in years. "Red wine and raw garlic keep me going."

Blackwood on Bridge

By Easley Blackwood

Again today I can not give you all of the bidding because my friend Mr. Muzzy jammed it up before even the first round was completed.

Over Mr. Abel's two-club call Mr. Muzzy bid not once, but twice. First he bid two diamonds. A few seconds later, before Mr. Dale had made up his mind whether to bid again on the South cards, Mr. Muzzy blurted out: "Wait a minute, make it two hearts."

He suddenly remembered something he had read in this column—that trump support doesn't have to be as good for raising an opening bid. He picked quite a spot for his first use of this bit of knowledge. He was obviously proud of remembering it until Mr. Dale reminded him he had violated the laws by changing his bid and that a penalty was in order.

South sides vulnerable
South dealer

North	(Mr. Abel)	East	(Mr. Muzzy)
S-A Q	S-J 9 6 4	S-10 7 3 2
H-K Q 7 6 4 2	H-A 5	H-J 9 8
D-J 9 7 4	D-3 2	D-A Q 10 6 5
C-Q 10 7 6 2	C-Q 10 7 6 2	C-9

The bidding:
South 1C West 1H North 2C East 2C

The penalty was explained to Mr. Muzzy. Had he changed his bid practically in the same breath, there would have been no penalty—as it was, he could allow his first bid of two diamonds to stand in which case Mr. Champion would be barred when next it was his turn to bid. Or Mr. Muzzy could make any legal call other than two diamonds (including either two hearts or pass) and in this case Mr. Champion would be barred for the entire balance of the bidding.

Well, Mr. Muzzy stubbornly stuck to his bid of two hearts and that ended Mr. Champion's chance to bid again on this particular deal.

Now the bidding was up to Mr. Dale and as usual he considered not only the cards he held but also the Humanics of the situation. The old boy is an expert in that field.

Mr. Dale knew that his cards warranted a bid of three clubs. But how well could he defend against a heart contract? Not too well, he thought. Mr. Champion was barred from the bidding but Mr. Muzzy was not. And Mr. Muzzy's bidding is absolutely unpredictable. If given another chance, he might well bid four hearts. And that contract, if reached, would be played by a fine dummy player, Mr. Champion. "Pass," said Mr. Dale.

Mr. Abel was smart enough to pass, too. And as you see, the East-West cards are cold for four hearts. Mr. Champion would have lost only one club, one diamond and one heart.

HOSPITAL SURVEY

OTTAWA—A survey that will show the number of hospitals and shelters available, in the event of national emergencies, is about to commence. Knowing where they are and how well equipped will hasten their use.

GUARD SEED FROM DISEASE WITH ANTI-BIOTIC SPAGNUM

Whenever seeds are sown early, they should be protected from the danger of disease. This danger is increased by low temperatures, excessive dampness, absence of sunshine, and any departure from the normal conditions of warm soil and full sun.

Hardy seeds sown directly in the garden when the weather is still chilly, and they may lie for days before warmth sufficient to germinate them arrives, should be treated with a disinfectant. There are several of these available in powder form. A tiny amount shaken in the seed packet will protect the seed.

But in seed boxes, protection can be given by using sphagnum moss, an inexpensive material used by florists and nurserymen to wrap around plant roots to keep them moist. This moss is believed to have anti-biotic qualities, since it destroys bacteria and fungi.

Most plant diseases are caused by fungi, which are themselves plants, which live as parasites on other plants or organic materials. The most common disease which threatens seed is known as "damping off."

This may attack seeds when they first sprout, and prevent the growth from breaking through the soil; or it may wait until the seedling plant is growing well and cause it to wilt overnight.

Britons Enjoy Canadian Bacon

LONDON (AP)—Bacon imported from Canada and Denmark is so good it puts British bacon in the shade, a food ministry official says.

Dr. Alex Calder, director of pig supplies for the ministry, told a Farmers' Club that the cry, "We don't want English bacon" is heard all too often in the distributive trade.

"The public wants lean bacon and will continue to discriminate against fat bacon or bacon which is coarse and stringy through having come from heavy, old pigs," said Dr. Calder.

The deficiencies of bacon produced at home were emphasized by high-quality Canadian and Danish imports.

Gardening shorts

Of the herbs which have survived in cooking, parsley is the most popular. Dill is next. Tarragon, which is the favorite flavoring for vinegar, is a tender perennial, but there is an annual form which gives much the same flavoring.

Ashes of wood, soft coal and hard coal are all valuable to loosen heavy clay soil, but it is best to let soft coal ashes weather for a season, to get rid of toxic substances.

Quick-grown, young vegetables are the best, and only the home garden, where they may be harvested as needed, can provide them.

Lettuce seed germinates best in a soil temperature of 60 to 65 degrees. If necessary to sow when temperatures are higher, place the seed between moist cloths and store for several days on ice. Dry the surface of the seed before sowing.
