Blackwood on Bridge

By Easley Blackwood

"Everything happens to me," moaned Mr. Muzzy as he went down one on this hand. "Look how those diamonds were divided—all in one hand."

Mr. Champion pointed out that the division of the adverse diamonds had nothing to do with the case and that three no trump was cold against any defense.

It started out with Mr. Dale opening the six of clubs and Mr. Muzzy winning with the king. Now at this point there is only one correct play. In order to make the play, Mr. Muzzy had to be able to count as high as nine and he had to be willing to give up practically all chance of making four-odd.

These two requirements are fairly easy and, although it might be close, I would say that Mr. Muzzy could qualify on both counts. However, there is one more thing, Mr. Muzzy had to recognize the need for the play. This he failed to do.

At the second trick he led a small spade to dummy's ace and pulled out the queen of diamonds, Mrs. Keen showed out, playing the deuce of spades.

Mr. Muzzy played low, as did Mr. Dale. Gradually Mr. Muzzy realized the full import of the situation. He groaned. Desperately he played the jack of diamonds from the board and ducked it.

"I'm handing you a trick," he said angrily to Mr. Dale. "Go ahead and take it!"

"A bomb you should hand me," grinned Mr. Dale. "You play your hand. I'll play mine." And he followed with the six-spot.

As you see, Mr. Muzzy was able to get only one more diamond trick, the ace. Thus he won only eight tracks.

Of course the correct play at trick two was the ace of diamonds. Diamonds should then be continued until the king is knocked out. The ace of spades must be preserved in dummy at all costs—as an entry to the set-up diamonds.

"Muzzy," said Mr. Champion sarcastically, "I would like to give you some information. I would like to tell you that three no trump calls for the taking of nine tricks."

"I know that," replied Mr. Muzzy sullenly.

"Then tell me," Mr. Champion asked, "why did you try for 10? You had two club tricks, two spades and one heart—that's five. And you had a five-card diamond suit missing only the king. That means you could have taken four diamond tricks if you'd started on them right away.

"Five and four are nine. You weren't willing to give up the king of diamonds as a safety play—so you give up the whole hand."

"Nuts," said Mr. Muzzy.

"It certainly was," Mr. Champion agreed.

Long Service With Red Shield

Colonel Gilbert Best, Field Secretary of The Salvation Army in Canada, was born in Carbonear, Newfoundland. He became an officer from St. John's I Corps, prior to which he taught school for three years in St. John's. He received his training as a Salvation Army officer in Toronto, and was commissioned in 1908.

He served in three field appointments in the Canadian field, following which came appointments at Territorial Headquarters, in the Chief Secretary's office and the Field Department.

For some years, the Colonel served in Divisional offices at Toronto and Vancouver, and also spent a period as Private Secretary to Commissioner Richards. From this appointment, he was appointed Chancellor for the Saint John, Hamilton and Toronto Divisions successively.

In 1925, Colonel Best became Divisional Commander for the Ottawa Division. Other Divisional commands followed at London, Montreal-Ottawa Divisions; and in 1939, following the movement of the Canadian Army overseas, he was appointed Secretary for War Services in Canada, from which work he returned to the Montreal Division early in 1940. He was appointed Field Secretary for Canada, on July 5, 1945.

Colonel Best married in 1913 to Captain Louise Reid. They have three children. Two sons served overseas with the armed forces, and the daughter is a registered nurse.
