Guide and Brownie Rally Draws Parents and Friends

Interested parents and friends attended the joint rally of more than 100 Guides and Brownies on Wednesday afternoon at Conrad Street School to see little Brownie recruits, being enrolled as Brownies and to witness 11 older Brownies advance to Girl Guides.

Twenty-one little recruits solemnly repeated the Brownie law and were admitted to full membership in the Conrad, Cathedral and Catholic Brownie packs. They were Janet Sherry, Virginia Genders, Darleen Gordon, Kathie Beaton, Wilma Denluck, Diane Mori, Judy Fedoruk, Phyllis Perch, Louise Thomas, Judy Hogan, Gwennie Warren, Sharon Robertson, Thelma Childs, Lynn Griffiths, Maureen Murdoch, Margaret Johanson, Brenda Brentzen, Judith Thompson, Loretta Destalais, Doreen Pipke and Gail Lund.

Several Brownies who had so qualified by reason of proficiency were "flown-up" to the Guides by Brown Ows Mrs. W. S. Kergin and Mrs. Williams. They were received by the captain of the Guides, Mrs. Duncan Black, aided by patrol leaders of both the Conrad and Cathedral Guide Companies. "Flying-up" to Guides were Nita Weise, Muriel Procter, Louise Anderson, Betty Sykes and Anna Colussi. Also advancing to Guide companies were Diana Davidson, Sharon Williams, Gail Berg, Diana Richards, Diana Smith and Betty Blair.

Concluding the rally, cookies were served to the happy group whose enthusiasm for Guide and Brownie work attests to the fine leadership of those sponsoring this movement.

Mrs. Massey And Princess

Former Prince Rupert Woman Almost Fainted

(By HERC MUNRO in Vancouver Province)
An interview with Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip in the royal suite at Hotel Vancouver will be a "most beautiful memory for a little Scots city widow."

Mrs. Sam Massey, 1525 Wolfe, is a cousin of Sir John Weir, personal physician to the royal family for more than 30 years. Sir John arranged for Mrs. Massey to meet Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip while the young royal couple were in Vancouver.

But Mrs. Massey didn't know arrangements had been completed until 7 Saturday night, when she received a phone call from the princess' secretary, Col. Martin Charteris.

ROYAL COMMAND
The princess requests that you come to the hotel to meet her," Col. Charteris said.

"I just about fainted," Mrs. Massey told The Daily Province.

Mrs. Massey asked Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Patrick, 4987 Marguerite, to accompany her "for moral support."

Dr. Patrick is a nephew and Mrs. Patrick is a niece of Sir Lancelot Barrington Ward, a famous British physician who also had attended the King.

"We were all so excited," Mrs. Massey said. "Dr. and Mrs. Patrick had a guest for dinner, but when I called they rushed off and left him to baby-sit with their children."

Mrs. Patrick confirmed this and termed the interview "very exciting;" the royal couple, "very charming."

Mrs. Massey said the princess told her: "We (the royal family) have the loveliest doctor. You have no idea how nice he is to all of us."

Her royal highness was referring to Sir John Weir, Mrs. Massey's cousin.

Mrs. Massey said Prince Philip told her: "I'm so glad to hear you, lovely Scots accent."

"Then he asked me where I was born and a lot of other questions, but I can't remember what all was said. It was just as though I were in a dream."

"It will be one of my life's most beautiful memories."

Mrs. Massey recalled that she told the princess she had seen her royal highness during the tour of the city.

"I was so close I could have shaken hands with you," she told her apparent to Britain's throne.

"Why didn't you?" the princess asked. And when Mrs. Massey replied: "I would probably have been arrested," her royal highness laughed gaily.

Mrs. Massey was born in Scotland, and came to Canada as a bride in 1919. She lived in Prince Rupert until 1948. Her husband passed away 18 months ago.

One of her uncles, Rev. John Fleming, often preached to royalty at Windsor Castle, she said. Among her prized possessions is a copy of a page from the July 22, 1891 edition of the Birmingham Daily Gazette printed on satin.

It formerly was the property of Queen Victoria, and Mrs. Massey took it to the interview Saturday night, but didn't get a chance to show it to the princess.

Boost for Alaska Music Trail—Discussion on Report Cards

A resolution seeking abolition of daylight saving was adopted in principle at the regular monthly meeting of King Edward Parent-Teacher Association.

Over 80 people attended the meeting. A prize of a book was given to the class with the largest number of parents present. Miss Beketov's class was the winner for October.

Mrs. J. T. Harvey gave a brief report on the Alaska Music Trail and brought to the attention of the meeting the fact that the people of Prince Rupert are very fortunate to have the opportunity of hearing the type of music that is brought here at such reasonable prices.

Mrs. W. Bowes will represent the school as delegate to the dental clinic committee and Mrs. K. Hardy will be delegate to the Citizenship Council meeting to be held October 23.

Following the business part of the meeting, J. Goscoe, accompanied by Mrs. J. Bowman, introduced at P-TA song. This is a lively number and was sung with gusto.

Gordon Freeman and R. G. Davidson of the Booth Memorial High School lead a discussion on report cards which proved very interesting.

Mrs. K. Hardy was in the chair. Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Peterson and her helpers.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. B. Hedstrom, who have been on a trip to Vancouver, returned to the city on the Prince George yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hurst of Vancouver arrived yesterday on the Prince George to attend the wedding of their elder son, Ronald, to Miss Shirley Robins, tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McMeekin, who have been away for the last couple of months on a holiday trip which took them to Eastern Canada and the United States, returned home on the Prince George yesterday.

The condition of Fred Read, who was obliged to enter hospital shortly after his return from an extended stay in London during the summer, is reported to be somewhat improved.

Rev. H. M. Wingfield, United Church pastor at Queen Charlotte City, is in the city for the fall session of the Prince Rupert Presbytery of the United Church of Canada of which he is secretary. He arrived from the Islands on Tuesday afternoon's plane.

A photo of Duncan Munro of Prince Rupert is included in a large illustration in the Vancouver Province that features a visit by Princess Elizabeth to Shaughnessy Military Hospital. The Princess is seen in conversation, convenient to the parade of veterans where the old timer from the north is standing.

Comments on Alaska Trail

COM ON ALASKA TRAIL
D. Jens Munthe—The only time I go into the Civic Centre is to a concert of this type. If for nothing else than the education of children I think the concerts are very worth while.

What do the children hear on the radio, nothing but hillbilly and boogie woogie, so how can they be expected to appreciate anything else? The more they hear of this good music, the less they'll think of the other stuff. And this applies to grown-ups too. Living up here on the outskirts away from concert life altogether, perhaps brought up here, many have never had the opportunity to learn to enjoy good music. But they will learn and simply by attending these good concerts.

Jennifer Large—Mummie might take me to the concerts next year.

Paul Antrobus—I've always thoroughly enjoyed the concerts but I'm particularly interested in hearing Donald Gramm tonight. He must be very good to have attained such outstanding success while still so young.

Christopher Harvey—Last year a man sounded just like the singing wha'e. My dad said he looked a bit like him too.

Diane Gilker—No one should miss any of the concerts, we get so few opportunities in Prince Rupert of hearing such outstanding artists. The program for the concert tonight with its variety of ballads, favorite songs, and light opera is one that should give everyone a wonderful evening.

Hube—The artists who come on the Alaska Trail realize that here as well as in Alaska that they are playing to an average cross-section of people.
