Blackwood on Bridge

By Easley Blackwood

After Miss Brash jumped to five clubs on this hand. Mr. Abel dropped several of his cards on the floor. He is always a little nervous when playing with Miss Brash. Who isn't?

Glancing down Mr. Muzzy happened to see the king of clubs. Now he felt certain that nothing could prevent him from winning three club tricks. Wouldn't you feel the same way?

"Double," Mr. Muzzy yelled delightedly. This was followed by a redoubled snort from Mr. Champion. "Oh, stop frowning, Champion," flared Mr. Muzzy. You frown at everything I do, M. We don't beat this contract I'll eat the cards."

"Would you boys like to show each other your hands?" inquired Miss Brash, who thought the talking across the board had gone far enough. "She entered the dummy with the ace of diamonds and ruffed another heart in her hand. Then she led to dummy's king of spades and ruffed the last heart from the board. At this point Mr. Champion's frown had deepened but Mr. Muzzy looked as cocky as ever.

Miss Brash's next play was to cash the king of diamonds. She followed with the ace of spades—and suddenly Mr. Muzzy realized what was about to happen to him. He was down to four cards, all of them clubs. (Wouldn't the woman EVER lead trumps?)

The answer to that question was "no"—not on this hand. Instead Miss Brash led her last spade and Mr. Muzzy had no choice but to trump it. He could now take only one more trick. Desperately he led his jack of clubs but Miss Brash let it run
