US Commies Convicted

WASHINGTON (CP) — Supreme Court Monday upheld the conspiracy convictions of United States Communist Party's 11 top leaders, holding they "intended to overthrow the government of the United States as speedily as circumstances would permit." With Justices William Douglas and Hugo Black dissenting from the decision and calling it a blow against freedom of speech, the court by the same 6-2 vote held the 1940 Smith Act constitutional—thus opening the way for prosecution of thousands of rank-and-file Communists. Crack-up Ends Hot Chase of Stolen Taxi

Thief Arrested—Car Wrecked
A plunge into a ditch where a speeding, stolen taxi finally came to a halt, ended an 80-mile-an-hour chase early this morning and led to arrest of Arthur Stuart Royle, 28, no fixed address.

The late model 75 Taxi was missed by the driver, Ernie Bradley, about 2:30 this morning. Police were notified in 10 minutes and with Frank Stewart, manager of the taxi, gave chase towards Port Edward. About four miles out of city limits, Mr. Stewart saw his taxi racing towards him. Both he and the police car turned around and followed the fleeing car. "I was going 80 and he must have been doing the same," said Mr. Stewart today. At a bend in the road Royle couldn't make the turn. Mr. Stewart saw the stolen auto make four complete turns before it came to rest among the rocks several hundred feet from the road. Royle was arrested upon arrival of police a few seconds later, then taken to hospital. He was later released into police custody. "I got my car back," said Mr. Stewart grimly, "but it's a total wreck."

No Deferment On Newspaper Mailing Rates

OTTAWA (CP) — A delegation representing Canadian Daily Newspaper Association Monday urged Postmaster-General Reinfret to defer the final adoption of the new Postal Act increasing mailing charges for newspapers and periodicals. Reinfret, who later told reporters he could not agree to the request, said the delegation wanted deferment of the third reading of the bill until it could present a memorandum containing suggestions for modification terms. Reinfret said the delegation discussed the question of the zoning system of postal charges on newspapers, but could not give him any "tangible" or "concrete" suggestions upon which he could take deferment steps. "I told them I had expected they would have something tangible, but they had nothing to offer immediately," he said.

Perry Is Optimist

Cellulose is Just Start—Urges City to Encourage Home Builders
Speaking in optimistic vein last night at the monthly meeting of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce, H. G. Perry declared that Prince Rupert was today on the verge of a new and throbbing economic life. He likened the new payroll which Columbia Cellulose was establishing here to a monetary irrigation which would circulate all around the community to the benefit of business generally. The beauty of it, too, was that an industry like this would not be subject to such vicissitudes as those of the lumber market, for instance.

And the change which Columbia Cellulose would bring here, asserted Mr. Perry, was only a forerunner of what was in store. Speaking of a move of fifty Columbia Cellulose workers to start a co-operative building project, which had been referred to earlier in the meeting, Mr. Perry expressed the opinion that the city of Prince Rupert should do everything possible to keep that project in the city. "It would be a tragedy not only to Prince Rupert but also to the men themselves if this project was allowed to start somewhere else, making it necessary to build from the ground up with all the difficulties and costs involved. It would be much to their advantage if they could build their homes in Prince Rupert where amenities already exist."

As for the city, what if it did involve some expenditure in extension of services? If the city was to keep pace with the expansion which was coming, it would have to be prepared to undertake new capitalization to provide facilities under a program of practical, reasonable development. Volume of new business would amply justify the expenditure, he suggested. He had followed the transaction of business at the Chamber's meeting with deep interest, Mr. Perry said. It was gratifying to see a group of men such as this alive to the responsibilities of citizenship. While the effort might at times seem futile, Mr. Perry felt that it was by no means wasting time.

"What kind of a Canada would this be today," he asked "if men such as you in cities and towns all over the country had not taken it upon themselves to fight persistently and untiringly for community development?" He congratulated the chairman (Vice-President T. Norton Youngs) on the way he had carried on the business and the grasp of affairs indicated by the members in the discussions.
