Blackwood on Bridge

By Easley Blackwood

Mr. Abel missed the boat on this hand. He only led one round of trumps—but that was one round too many.

Against the four-heart contract Mr. Masters led the nine of diamonds, dummy and Mrs. Keen played low and Mr. Abel won the jack. He could count nine winners—that is, five hearts, two diamonds and two clubs. The tenth trick was easily obtainable, but Mr. Abel didn't see it.

He wanted to lead a spade up to his king, in the hope that the ace was in Mrs. Keen's hand.

If that had been the case five-odd could have been made. But Mr. Abel was only in four—and that should have been his prime objective.

See what happened, Dummy's only entries were in the trump suit, so Mr. Abel led a heart to the ace and then played low—and the king was smothered by Mr. Masters' ace.

Mr. Masters fired back a trump and it now dawned upon Mr. Abel that he was going down unless a miracle happened. He won the trump lead in his hand and led another spade. No miracle happened. Mr. Masters went in with the ten of spades and led the last trump off the board.

Mr. Abel had to lose a third spade as well as a club trick for down one.

Mr. Champion's lecture was not long in starting. He pointed out that Mr. Abel could afford to lose two spade tricks, but not three. After winning the first trick with the jack of diamonds, he should have led a spade at once. As soon as he got in again he should have led a second spade.

Playing in this manner, nothing could have prevented him from trumping a spade in dummy. He would always have been one jump ahead of the enemy.

Funny thing, but the king of spades was actually a liability to Mr. Abel in this hand. If he had held three small spades there wouldn't have been any point at all in going to dummy for the first lead of that suit. The correct play would have been automatic.

Well, Mr. Champion's analysis of the play was right as usual. It was exhaustive—and exhausting. It impressed everybody but Mr. Abel. Mr. Abel continued to insist that if Mrs. Keen held the ace of spades, his method of play would have won. His partner's lecture accomplished nothing but to get him badly upset for the next hand.

Free Hitting Baseball Tie

Darkness Ends Season's Opener in 11-11 Tie

"All tied at the end of the eighth inning, the season's opening baseball game last night at Roosevelt Park was called because of darkness. Commercial tied the score 11-11 with Gordon & Anderson by batting in two runs in the eighth to overcome a two-run lead.

The "opener" of thirty games the three-team league is scheduled to play this season was lively all the way and saw some star playing by both teams.

First team up was G & A with Larry Warner starting pitcher for Commercial. Warner pitched all the way through the game giving up four safe hits with earned runs, and two bases on balls, the other on a struck batter.

Stan Cornwell, manager of G & A, had trouble with his pitchers after Vern Ciccone, starter, was relieved. But both Kristianson and Don Scherk, each pitching two innings, while handing out walks, pitched several solid strikeouts.

Star batter of the game was Andy Marshall, left fielder for G & A, who brought in three runs, two of them with a three base hit.

Gunn, left fielder for Commercial, was the other strong hitter in the game, with two two-baggers. He brought in three runs.

Benny Windle, Commercial's third-baseman, hit twice in four times at bat and brought in the two tying runs in the last of the eighth with a two-base hit.

G & A chalked up two runs in the first inning, one by Doug Schier on a base hit and the other by playing manager Cornwell on an error, and at the bottom of the third inning were leading Commercial 6-1.

With Commercial's bases loaded in the last of the sixth, a quick double play at third from shortstop Schier to third-baseman Scherk put out Gunn and stopped two extra runs coming in. Commercial racked up a double play towards the end of the game with the Wiens-Losedale combination, second and first-baseman respectively.

Weather was perfect for the season's opener although a cold breeze fanned the loaded bleachers toward the evening.

The first game crowd gave $34.20 in a Sunday collection, Bill Gordon, vice-president of the Prince Rupert Baseball Association announced.

Umpire-Referee Letouneau called the game at the end of the eighth because of darkness.

Wages War on Wasteful Fare

PARIS (Reuters) — A leading French nutrition expert is waging a campaign against "wasteful eating for purse and stomach."

Professor Hughes Gounelle, president of the French Clinical and Biological Research Unit on Nutrition, a Rockefeller foundation set up in 1940, believes that the majority of people, irrespective of income, are still unable to eat sensibly.

He says that the average Frenchman who is obliged to spend 57 per cent of his earnings — the highest in western Europe — on food still does not eat to the best advantage for his health. By organizing his meals on a rational, balanced basis, the average Frenchman could eat more healthily for less money, he says.

Gounelle has these comments on:

French Kitchens: Among the best in the world. They provide varied palatable dishes which also aid digestion. The American kitchen comes after the French. There is no such thing as an English kitchen. Tasteless food is one of the unfortunate results of English cooking. Many valuable salts and minerals are lost through overcooking.

"Makeshift" Meats: Whale, goat, reindeer and beaver may not suit everyone's taste but they have as much nutritive value as pork, beef or mutton.

Cafeterias, particularly the kind in the United States: "The nutritive value of the meal is wastefully offset by the atmosphere of noise, haste and nervous tension in these rapid self-service restaurants."

Sugar: Sugar is one of the greatest enemies of healthy nourishment. In 1823, the average American consumed eight pounds of sugar a year; by 1940, it had risen to 101 pounds. Too much sugar, by unbalancing a body-building diet, is a common cause of rickets among children and early tooth decay. Children are given too much candy.

Opposed equally to over-eating and eating too little, he frowned upon the American habit of eating a large quantity of meat before the night's rest. But he favors dinner, the American work.
