Irked Over Price Increase Mayor Swears Off Smoking

Mayor G. W. Rudderham has taken the lead in a move to boycott the tobacco industry in protest at the latest hike in cigarette prices. He has quit smoking.

After 50 years of enjoying the habit, the mayor said today: "It's pretty hard going, but I've made up my mind." Even though he keeps fumbling in his pockets for smokes which aren't there and looks enviously at the cigarette extended by City Clerk R. W. Long, he said a firm "No, thanks."

Meanwhile city hall staff refuse to take bets that the mayor will fall down on his resolve, because they feel he can carry through.
