A rough estimate last year. membership of 33,000. she said, showed that more than 250,000 had been spent by the association in B.C. during the last five years in supplying equipment for schools.

First exponent of visual education was the P-TA, she said, and in order to prove its effect, dren's education. projectors, record players, radios and pianos had first been installed by the association.

"And now the department i doing it.' But such work was only being done where money for the equipment was not available from school funds.

"We are not just a women's auxiliary to schools, you know." The hardest work of the organization showed the least tangible results, and that was in the field of parent education.

TEACHING PARENTS

"This organization was founded in the U.S. 56 years ago because someone felt parents were not interested enough in education of their children. "In that field lies our hard-people taking these courses." REPORT CARDS

Parents must familiarize themselves with today's teaching system, or "how else are they to know if their children are getting the best?"

She told the meeting that for some time the P-TA had tried to persuade the Department of Education to put in a new report card system. How many parents knew how to read the reports of their children today?

"Ask the principals if they can
