

Jets Take Commanding Lead In Title Series

Kid Gavilan Turns Tables

NEW YORK (CP)—Cuba's Kid Gavilan signed for a welterweight title fight yesterday and celebrated last night by shipping home Gene (Silent) Hairston in a ten-round action-packed ten-round Madison Square Garden.

Gavilan, a 7 to 5 favorite, was weighed 150 to 155½.

It was a doubly sweet triumph for the sleek Cuban Hawk who had avenged a split decision loss to the New York deaf mute in a previous fight.

Penticton Down Twenty Points On Series Opener

Local Stars

RAY SPRING

DON SCHERK

Prince Rupert Jets go into the second game of the B.C. Senior B championship series tonight with a 20-point lead by virtue of a smart win last night over the highly-rated Penticton Omegas.

In the first game of the series the Jets piled up a 66 to 46 score and, except for their nervousness in the first five minutes of the game, were the best team all the way.

The Jets were sparked by the brilliant playing of Don Scherk, Ray Spring and Art Olson. Scherk was sensational and his three breakaway baskets in the second half will not be forgotten in many a year. He scored 19 points and was the fastest man on the floor in the first half.

Art Olson did a very effective job of holding Penticton's Chuck Raitt, who is a mere 6'4", down to 11 points.

It was the Jets' dominion of the play under the baskets that gave them the edge over the Omegas.

Joe Davis played smart ball, too, and every player on the team was in top form as Alex Bill's boys won their first playoff victory.

For the losers, Bill Raptis and Chuck Raitt were the two most effective players, although Cowboy Douglas also showed well as he came through with the top score of 13 points. Raptis, who played here a year ago with UBC, was not the player that he was at that time and seems to be packing around a little more weight which slows him down somewhat.

Raitt is a fine ball player, and it is to Art Olson's credit that he held him to 11 points, as he is a 20-point man on most occasions.

The referees had a busy evening and at all times kept the game well in hand without slowing up its terrific speed. Twenty-nine fouls were called on the Jets and 25 on Omegas by Referee Basil Sands of Vancouver and Umpire Ole Slatta of Prince Rupert.

The Jets suffered the first casualty as they lost Flaten on five fouls just 10 seconds after the second half started. Before the game was over, Spring also went out on fouls, and for Penticton, Powell, McGannon and Raptis all left the game via the same route in the closing minutes of play.

CROWD PLEASER

It was a happy crowd that left the Civic Centre when the game was over and they should be back for more tonight. Certainly the Jets carry a big lead into the second game but Penticton can't be counted out. They have beaten the best teams in the south and tonight might upset the apple-cart although to find any Penticton money today will be a difficult task for any of the fans who wish to place a small wager.

Last night's performance was sparked by a very effective cheer team led by Bo-Me-Hi cheerleaders Leona Webster, Barbara Moore, Pat Hill and Rena Ingram.

The Job's Daughters provided entertainment during the half-time intermission as they presented one of their new military drills which was very effective. In a preliminary game the Booth 3 team came through with a win over Annunciation School by a 30 to 14 score to break a one-game-apiece tie and to win the Ormes Drugs trophy.

Inspired By Beauty

While Prince Rupert Jets racked up points last night—two by two in lightning speed succession—to win over Penticton's Omegas by a lead of 20-odd, spectators were still further refreshed by the show of the best in this city's pulse.

During short times out, cheerleaders tripped out on the floor to aid home-town enthusiasm for their team. With their "Yeah Jets!"—"Come on Jets!" and similar cries they really worked up more audience admiration than response.

And at half-time of the game only a few left their seats for refreshments or a smoke. They stayed to watch with admiration the display of Job's Daughters.

drill team, marching to the pipes of William MacKay. Thirty girls, in short plaid skirts of the Scottish uniform, showed just how a ceremonial drill must be performed to win outstanding international prizes as they have in the last two years.

To rounds of swelling applause the team was led by Majorette Margaret Olske through intricate formations of pin-wheels, diagonals and sharp-cut, precise right and left wheels.

The high-stepping fast pace must have been grueling towards the end of their 15-minute performance without a rest, but there was never a falter and only a smile on each face as they stamped off the floor to thundering ovation and cries of "more, more!"

INSPIRED JETS

Perhaps all this inspiration had its desired effect on the Jets, for in the next few minutes of the game they doubled their lead over the visitors, from 12 to 25 points ahead. Half-time score was 17-29, for the Jets.

While in the beginning of the game there were mainly cheers for the Jets from the well-packed auditorium, the crowd's sportsmanship could not be held down and they cheered with enthusiasm as Penticton's Chuck Raitt or Bill Raptis smashed through the strong defence to score spectacular points.

Perhaps the greatest display of maneuverability was seen—if one was quick enough—when lanky Joe Davis would make his remarkable recoveries from heavy checking. At times his hips would nearly graze the floor, but always he came out of over-balance swiftly and gracefully.
