Inconsistencies

AT MUNSAN we see the Communist truce negotiators objecting to the United Nations proposal for behind the lines inspection following the eaching of a cease fire agreement.

At Paris, Russia insists on international control and inspection of atomic forces after the banning of same and the western powers are, apparently, unwilling to go that far.

The two attitudes on either side would seem to be diametrically opposed in the separate issues.

It might appear naive to wonder at the attitudes taken on occasion by either side and to speculate if here is not often the inclination just to be opposite with no particular reason although there may be complex explanations.

To the simple observer, it is to wonder if there is not often an inclination to get away from fundamental considerations, confusing them with suspicion and possible inhibitions of hostility.

Contribution of Royalty

THE CONTRIBUTION of the Throne of Great Britain as a living symbol of the best in the traditions and life of the peoples of the Commonwealth is incalculable.

United states people and others, who do not understand that the Royal Family of Great Britain is also the Royal Family of Canada, often question Canadians regarding the cost to Canada of the Throne of Great Britain.

They cannot understand that the priceless contribution of the King of Canada to the maintenance of the standards of parliamentary and public life of the countries of the Commonwealth is borne by the people of Great Britain; that the only cost in money to us is that of the office of Governor-General of Canada. The money cost is insignificant in relation to the constructive contribution of the institution to the standards of law and justice. In dollars and cents the expense of the monarchy throughout the British Commonwealth and Empire is only a fraction of the cost of political graft that destroys the standards of public life in some countries which are completely run by political machines.

LETTERBOX

CITY WATER LINE

Editor,
Daily News.

In order to combat subversive tactics employed in an effort to persuade the city to abandon its gravity water supply line from Woodworth Lake on the grounds that it has had its day and can no longer be depended upon for service, the substitute to be electric pumps at Shawatlans Lake, the waterworks foreman, C. J. Gustafson, at my instigation, has submitted a report dealing with the physical aspects of the line. It speaks for itself and is in full accord with Mr. Bonney castle's report of 1950. The report of Mr. Gustafson in full is enclosed and I would ask you, Mr. Editor, to publish it in connection with this letter.

Britain's Class War

THE FIERCE all-night battles in Britain's new parliament look ominous to me. They look like the first manoeuvres in a dangerous class war.

The new Churchill government proposes to revive the Home Guard. That proposal seems sensible enough, on the surface. But the real reason for the fierce and absolutely united opposition by the entire Labor party is clear to anyone who understands the realities of British politics today:

The Labor party fears that the Home Guard is being re-created not as a means of defence against a possible Russian invasion, but as a device to intimidate or coerce the working class in event of severe labor troubles in Britain.

In simplest terms, the Labor party wants guarantees that the Home Guard is not to become just a glorified force of strike-breakers.

I REPORTED from Britain in the recent election that there were "two nations within a single island." The two political forces face each other as unwillingly as the two opposing armies in Korea. On the surface everything is very, very polite—very British.

But the big boys in both political camps know perfectly well that Britain's basic position is such as soon to require drastic changes in her economy. They know that somebody is going to have to "take the rap."

What they are really doing now is "squaring off" for the surely coming fight.

IN THE recent election Mr. Aneurin Bevan won a considerable success, first within the Labor party itself, and later in the general election.

As I reported, he seemed to me to be firing the first shots in the NEXT election—not the one then going on. His candidates won, mostly by increased majorities, even where "regular" Labor candidates went down to defeat in next-door ridings.

Bevan was fighting frankly on a "class war" platform.

I was told by some of Mr. Bevan's supporters that the first important move by a victorious Conservative party would be to re-create the Home Guard as a tool of class interest. The Bevan boys predicted that, in such an event, the set-up and composition of the Home Guard would be very different from that of the Second World War. Back in the early forties the Home Guard was a decidedly "leftish" affair. Tom Wintringham, of Spanish civil war fame, was one of its key members.

The new one, Mr. Bevan's supporters told me, would be the very reverse.

THE KEY to the opposition by the Labor party to the proposed Home Guard is the demand for LEGAL guarantees that the force will not be used in labor disputes. The Conservative ministers have given verbal assurance that the Home Guard will not be used in such cases. But Labor is adamant in demanding guarantees, written right into the law, that there are such limitations.

So far the Conservatives have refused to give these.

BEHIND the struggle is this key fact:

Even before the big armament program has got really going, Britain is unable to do all the things to which she is already pledged. In other words, cuts are coming. Somebody is going to get hurt, economically. Whose piece of pie is going to get sliced—and my how much?

The present struggle over the Home Guard is just the first round in the fight.

The longer range truth is that Britain can never regain her old prosperity, except in a world of stable peace.

November Dull, Wet

November was a rainy month in Prince Rupert with 9.17 inches of precipitation on 22 days.

Nor did Old Sol show his face very much in the eleventh month. He shone for only 31.8 hours on 13 days.

So far this year sunshine in Prince Rupert totals 944.4 hours which makes it still a brighter year than 1950 with 928.9 hours in the corresponding period.

The precipitation this year so far aggregates 68.71 inches compared with 73.83 inches in 1950's first 11 months.

The maximum recorded wind velocity for the month was 34 miles from the southeast on November 16.

The weather summary for November, as issued by the Dominion meteorological station at Elbow Island, was as follows:

Maximum temperature, 59 on November 5.

Minimum temperature, 28.2 on November 22.

Mean temperature, 41.7.

Maximum barometer reading at sea level, 30.34 on November 1.

Minimum barometer reading, 28.51 on November 30.

Precipitation, 9.17 on 22 days.

Sunshine, 31.8 hours on 13 days.

Maximum wind velocity, south-east, 34 miles per hour, November 16.

Terrace also has its garbage problem. It's much more simple than the one existing here, yet enough to create a situation called deplorable—and that's somewhat strong language. It's like this. There is a gully near Terrace and the village truck, from the edge of the ravine, dumps all the rubbish away down into it. So there you are. But the general public decline to co-operate. Private citizens, with their own collection of debris, do not follow the example.

Reflects and Reminisces

Mrs. Sampson, Montreal lawyer, says more women should enter public affairs. They are just as responsible for general conditions as the men. This attitude is deserving of respect but someone will have to be in the kitchen now and then.

"Boys in B.C. make so much money they get delusions," said Mr. Justice O'Halloran in Vancouver last week. "We had one boy in here only 15 years old who was making $12 to $13 a day." He was charged with theft of things he had not the slightest need of.

It's all very well to predict 1952 a big and busy year in Northern B.C. It sounds well. It makes one feel cheerful. People draw heat direct from a atomic pile.
