rates; a tough budget to increase taxes and hold down public purchasing power; and finally that marvellous financial gimmick invented by Mr. Abbott and his experts—the four-year postponement of depreciation allowances on new business to discourage it from expanding.

Taken together the four-wheel brakes fastened on the national economy represent the boldest deflationary policy attempted by any democratic nation since inflation began. But will they work? Will they arrest our lunge toward an inflationary disaster? Will the cost of living soon stop rising?

The Government hopes so and believes so—barring war abroad or human folly at home. That is to say, prices should level out during the summer if no international incident sets off another panic buying spree and if the labor unions don't blow the roof off by excessive wage demands or, worse, by reducing their hours of work and hence the nation's production.

These are big and dangerous ifs. No wonder the Government is chary about predictions. Nevertheless, the inner circles of Ottawa, where the great decisions are made, are happier about inflation than at any time since the price explosion of the Korean war last June.

If the economic decisions work out as planned there will be no direct price controls in Canada. The Government never believed in them anyway in an economic sense but in a political sense it has never felt able, up to now, to reject them irrevocably since they might prove unavoidable, even if they were useless. Breathing easier in the last few weeks, the Government begins to feel that the danger of price controls is past.

The Conservative Party, in queer alliance with the CCF, is still demanding them because it has not yet heard of the Government's policy of monetary deflation. It will hear soon and so, by the way, will the British Columbia Government, whose financial plans have been knocked into a cocked hat. All of which will be explained here, if anyone is interested, in some subsequent dull dispatches.

Texas Days in Colorful Film

Fighting days of Texas in the days following the Civil War provide the background for an exciting drama in technicolor, "Dallas," which comes to the screen of the Totem Theatre here at the end of this week, commencing tomorrow. Gary Cooper has the role of a guerilla chieftain who came out of the Civil War seeking revenge from three outlaw brothers who plundered his land during the strife. Ruth Roman is the girl who wins Cooper's heart while a new star, Steve Cochran, supplies the menace Raymond Massey, Barbara Peyton and Lief Erickson head the featured cast.

Authenticity of scene lend realism to the setting of an exciting story where men and women battle for the benefits of a rugged, open land.

IODE Studies Need For New Immigrants to Learn English

SASKATOON (CP)—A recommendation urging that immigrants be required to learn English within a limited space of time today was placed before the annual meeting of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

It was presented by Miss D. E. Taylor of Ottawa, who as immigration and Canadianization convener reported on the order's work with new Canadians during the year.

Miss Taylor said the IODE has received letters from persons in different parts of Canada asking for assistance in getting their relatives to join them in this country.

"Many of these letters were from resident Chinese who wanted to get their families free from Communist influence in China," she said.

Miss Taylor reported that immigration to Canada during the last year dropped to 73,912, some 22,000 below the 1949 figure.

"It is expected, however, that owing to new regulations in cost of passage, and the requests of Canadian industry for men, the number will be greatly increased in 1951," she said.

Since the end of the last war Canada had admitted 436,365 immigrants.

MAKE THEM WELCOME
Miss Taylor pictured briefly activities of various chapters of the order in making immigrants feel at home upon arrival in Canada.

In New Brunswick, she noted, new arrivals were provided with adequate clothing when necessary, entertained in homes, and taught English and Canadian home cooking.

IODE chapters of Quebec helped 21,000 immigrants in various ways. At the moment one was sponsoring three years' education for the child of a new Canadian.

Ontario reported 13 newcomers had joined the order.

British Columbia was among the provinces recommending a greater knowledge of the English language be required before the granting of government certificates.

Reports on the order's endowment fund, the Commonwealth and Empire committee, also were heard at this afternoon's session.

As convener of the latter committee, Mr. Charles Scott of Peterborough, Ont., told of the order's overseas work and particularly what it has been doing in India.

One of the major efforts in this field during the year was the provision of money to help with the translation into Hindu of nurses' textbooks.

Mrs. H. H. Rimmer of Toronto presented the final report of the endowment fund which has reached its minimum goal of $200,000. However, she reported the fund will remain open for such new chapters that may wish to contribute "in assuring the order's security and financial independence."

Mrs. Laurence Grout of Toronto, secretary of "Echoes," the organ's official publication, reported the magazine finished the year with a surplus of $2811. Last year it had a deficit of $981.

Mrs. O. L. Robb of Toronto, publicity convener, noted that the wide distribution of publicity the order received during the year was partly due to the displaying of Queen Mary's carpet in the provinces.
