Aussies Rebuild Whale Industry

By LOUIS L. LECK
Canadian Press Correspondent
SYDNEY, Australia (P)—In the last three years, Australia has re-established here long dead whaling industry and developed it into a highly profitable business.

Two whaling stations—both on the west Australian coast—are in full operation.
Between them, this year, they will produce oil worth $1,400,000 and by-products valued at $200,000.

Further stations are now being organized at Moretown Island, Queensland, Byron Bay, New South Wales, and Albany, western Australia.

When they are in operation whaling will be worth more than $3,000,000 a year to the Commonwealth.

A century ago Australia was one of the world's whaling centres.
The thriving industry collapsed almost overnight when kerosene was discovered in 1859 and the whale oil lamp went out of fashion. For many decades nothing happened to cause a rebirth of local interest.

In 1936 two whalers flying the United States flag appeared off the west Australian coast and took 3,072 whales in the season. No one envied them much for whale oil was then bringing barely $10 a ton. (Not $160.)

The ships reappeared in 1937 to catch 3,242 whales. One came alone in 1938 and obtained 917 whales.

Then the Second World War almost halted whaling everywhere.

USED IN MARGARINE
In 1948 whale oil was bringing $110 a ton for use in the manufacture of margarine.

A company called the Nor-West Whaling Co. was formed in Perth to cash in on the high prices. It opened up a station which Norwegians had established at Point Cloates in western Australia but later abandoned.

In April, 1949, the Australian government decided to open a whaling station of its own.

This year, by the end of October, the government station tally was 600 whales. Nor-West Company also caught and processed 600.

German buyers are particularly eager to get Australian whale oil, and are offering more than $160 a ton.

By next year privately owned stations at Moreton Island and Albany will be in operation. The Byron Bay station should quickly follow.

There seems no reason why Australians, once they get the know-how, shouldn't do well in their own backyard—the Antarctic.

There Norwegian, British and Japanese whalers are earning $30,000,000 a year between them.

BOYS BAG SHARK
CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP)—Harold Heath and Albert Layden went hunting for rabbits but came back with a six-foot ground shark. The boys were pushing their boat off to return when they spotted the shark's fin, and Heath killed it with his rifle.

LURE FOR DUCKS
FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP)—The migrating ducks which usually by-pass this immediate district may soon be steered this way each fall. The lure is wild rice, planted in nearby fields.

Britain Wasting Energy in Smoke

BLACKPOOL, England (CP)—Dr. J. Bronowski, fuel research expert, says that Britain's greatest store of energy is the energy she wastes.

In a speech before a society devoted to reducing smoke, Dr. Bronowski said he doubts whether Britain can hold her place as a world leader if she continues to blow 17 hundredweight of energy in every ton up the chimney.

One of the national characteristics, Dr. Bronowski said, was an inclination to treat any elderly piece of equipment with reverence usually reserved for a pensioned gun-dog whom it would be disgraceful to grudge feed and house room.

"I hope we shall be able to afford the dog, but I will not need a word in favor of antiquarian machines, and least of all do they seem to be lovable because they smoke as fiercely as their owners."

ANTI-COYOTE SCHOOL
RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—A school for coyote killers will be held here. Instructions are to be given in the use of cyanide poisoning for the prairie pest.
