MISSING DIPLOMATS
LONDON—Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison sidestepped questions in the House of Commons today on political views of Britain's pair of vanished diplomats. "I have no evidence that these men took documents with them," Morrison said. The search has turned from France to Rome although it is now felt that the two men are no longer in Western Europe.

COMMUNISTS CRUMBLING
TOKYO—United Nations tanks rumbled into the anchor points of Choson and Kumhwa today, collapsing the Communist "Iron Triangle" in North Korea. Red rearguards, armed only with rifles and machine guns, faded quickly before the blasting of American tanks as infantrymen moved in and took over the anchors of the Reds vaulted assembly area 20 miles north of the 38th parallel. The Reds are falling back towards Pyongyang, apex of the triangle.

UP TO THE REDS
TOKYO—Defence Secretary George Marshall said today that the Chinese "have got themselves into a difficult situation." Any peace moves, he said, would have to come from the Reds.

Small Boy Safe After Half Night in Wet Bush

Alone, cold and soaking wet, a five-year-old boy spent the better part of Saturday night in the underbrush of Shawatlans rifle range while his anxious parents, neighbors and police searched for 11 hours before he was found.

But today Warren Cavenalle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Cavenalle, 1401 Frederick Street, is as happy as ever and he "hasn't even got a cold," Mrs. Cavenalle rejoiced.

It was Mr. Cavenalle who found his son at 3:30 a.m. Sunday, curled up under shrubs, some distance from the Port Edward highway, half a mile from his home. "I nearly tripped over him," said the happy father, who had just returned after a tiring drive from Vancouver.

Young Warren was missed by his mother when a little dog with whom the boy had been playing, returned home alone at about 6 p.m. Saturday. Mrs. Cavenalle tried to get the dog to show her where Warren was, but "he wouldn't do anything," she said. Then she gave the alarm to police. Description of the boy and his name was broadcast and neighbors and friends turned out in force to join the search. "There were about 30 cars parked along the road. They were all looking for my boy," the mother said. But the early hours of Sunday morning left only the father looking for his lost son, and after he found young Warren, Mr. Cavenalle saw where the boy crossed a creek deep enough to drown him. Warren has a 16-month-old sister, Laura. The Cavenalles operate a service station where they live.

Talk of King Retiring

Speculation Over His Health

LONDON (CP)—London's mass-circulation Sunday Pictorial speculates that the King may "retire from the throne" because of ill-health. The 55-year-old monarch has been confined to Buckingham Palace for the last two weeks as a result of a "small catarrhal inflammation, a slight form of pneumonia," medical experts explained.

In addition, the King has suffered since 1948 with an ailment which blocks the circulation of the blood and affects his right leg. Diplomatic sources close to the court have commented recently that the King is looking much older, seemingly strained and tired. This could be due to an onerous round of public duties he has insisted on performing. But it could also indicate that there is a general deterioration in the King's health.

The King's advisers already have suggested that Princess Elizabeth and her husband, Prince Philip, take over more of His Majesty's official duties and give him a better opportunity of getting rest.

Coveted Jobs

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP)—There are 40,000 jobs going begging in New Zealand, but the lighthouse service has a waiting list.
