Keystone of Main Street

The towns of Canada are vigorous places. Early settlers built them beside great oceans, turbulent rivers, towering mountains and rolling pastures. And each town's character and industry came from the surrounding countryside.

Helping to build the industries of many Canadian towns is your bank . . . a branch of The Commerce. The manager is a neighbour, a professional man who gives service that comes with long acquaintance.

Canadian towns depend on each other, and upon the men and women at The Commerce. They are good people to know.

Pr. Rupert Facts

WATERWORKS SYSTEM

Prince Rupert owns and operates its own waterworks system. The monthly rates for water are $2.00 less 10% for prompt payment. The distribution system is adequate for a population substantially greater than the present 10,000.

Renewals and extensions of the distribution system are paid out of profits. The City Officials have indicated that over the next five years it may be necessary to borrow about $250,000 to construct a new main line from the reservoir to the City.

SCHOOLS

On completion of the present building program authorized, Prince Rupert will have adequate school facilities for at least five years.

General services in the city of Prince Rupert have been found by Columbia Cellulose people to be vastly better than they had expected. This includes shopping, clubs, recreational facilities, etc.

COLUMBIA CELLULOSE Plant at Prince Rupert represents $27,000,000 worth of confidence in B.C.'s future. The company operates under the first forest management licence to be issued in this province and manufactures pulp for rayon, plastics and chemicals. Factory is built at Port Edward, a few miles from the city, on an island.

on the Opening of its new Port Edward Plant

This magnificent new plant near Prince Rupert represents further substantiation that Canadian industry is making great investments in northern British Columbia. And to supply and service this increased activity, Shell Oil Company's Prince Rupert terminal and distribution centre is equipped for railroad and water shipments. Shell has been serving industry in British Columbia for over 36 years with refining and manufacturing facilities.

SHELL'S new Prince Rupert Terminal is the distribution centre for the neighbouring coastal and island area. Located on the waterfront, adjacent to the Grain Commissioner's dock, railway tank car loading facilities have been installed to handle large bulk shipments of petroleum products.
