Not Worth While Channel Swimmer Teacher Decides

Gertrude Ederle Loses Hearing and Regrets Her Exploit

RYE, N.Y., Aug. 16:-She teaches swimming in a boardwalk pool, a bronzed young woman with a determined grin. Unless you raise & ing world. your voice she canont hear you and looks at you with an expression that has in it embarrassment, bewilderment, fear. Across the back of her bathing suit is lettered: "Ederle."

Four years ago this August Gertrude Ederle swam the English Channel and came home to receive a Broadway welcome, congratulatory messages from President Coolidge and Governor Smith, and vaudeville offers that were said at the time to amount to nearly $1,-000,000.

Today she pushed her hair back behind her ears—a gesture that has become characteristic since she began to lose her hearing two years ago as the result of those 14 hours. in the English Channel-and said, a little wistfully:

"It wasn't worth while. I'm not sorry I did it. Only-if I'd known how it was going to be, that I'd lose my hearing—I don't think I'd have done it. It-it wasn't worth it."

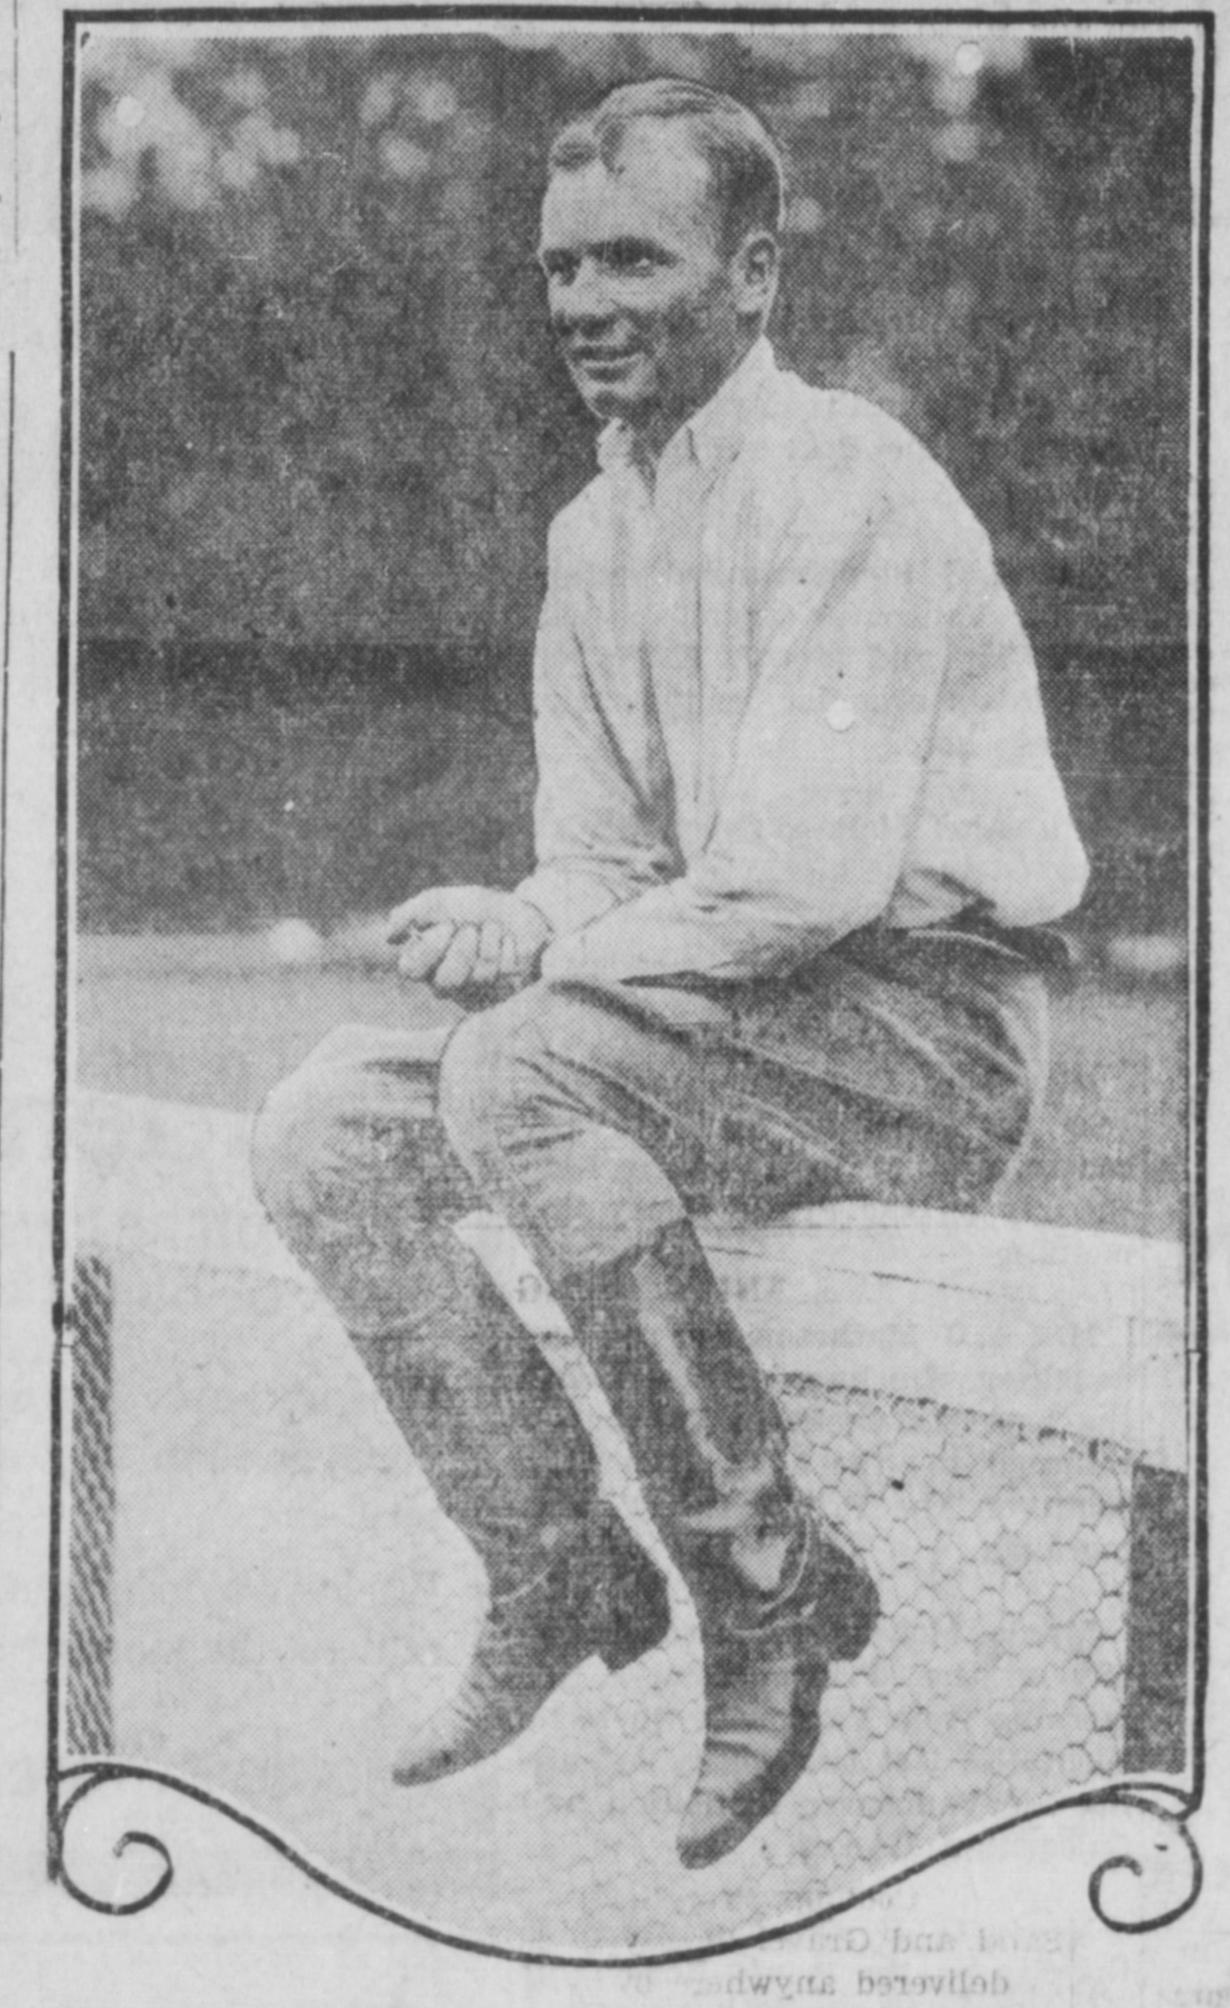

Four years ago Gertrude Ederle rode up the bay on the Macon and up Broadway in an open car while crowds cheered and ticker tape and paper snow filled the air. "Sometimes I kind of wonder if all that really happened to me," she said slowly. "But sometimes at dances the orchestra plays 'Let me Call You Sweeheart,' the song I kept humming while I was in the Channel-the song the bands played when I came home. And then it all sort of comes back over me again, and I have to sneak away or somebody will see me cry." A year ago last fall, at the end of two years in vaudeville, Gertrude's hearing began to fail. Last winter she could not hear at all. It is better now, but already her voice has begun to take on the flat quality that the voices of the deaf have. "The doctors say it was the swim that did it," she said, "plus those two terribly strenuous years when I was in the water too much and never had any chance to rest."

J. G. Stephens, tennis champion of the Smithers division of the C. N. R., arrived from Smithers today and will play games with the local champions this evening.
