

Man in the Moon

To trade or not to trade, that is the question in our relations with the rest of the British Empire.

Efficiency systems are all right but also it is well to remember that the work has to be done and it is impossible to spend all the time on systems.

Today we are advertising tenders for a liquor store; tomorrow we shall be asking bids on the new hotel; next day it will be the post office. Does seem as if Prince Rupert is about to come of age.

"What can I do," roared the fiery orator during a demonstration, when I see my country going to ruin, when I see our oppressors' hands at our throats, strangling us, and the black clouds of hopelessness and despair gathering on the horizon to obliterate the golden sun of prosperity? What, I ask you, what can I do?"

"Sit down!" shouted the audience.

What shall we have to grumble about if Cow Bay is cleaned up? An echo answers, "What?"

How careless these Prince Rupert people are of existing institutions. Fancy laying sacrilegious hands on the sacred privileges of Cow Bay. Next thing we shall hear of their pulling down some of the old shacks that at present adorn the landscape in various parts of the city.

And what did Cow Bay do? It scented the air With perfume most rare; It made us artistic With ruins majestic; And twisted our tongues With problems linguistic, Provided by dirty old Moo.
