ROADS FIRST AS POLICY

District Engineer Strongly Urged That Settlers Should Be Allowed to Take up Inaccessible Lands

The need of careful supervision of settlement and the desirability of letting road building precede settlement was stressed in an address given yesterday afternoon at the Rotary Club luncheon in the Commodore Cafe, George Bryant presiding.

Mr. Gwyer, who is resident engineer for this district in connection with the public works department, drew a vivid picture of conditions which had existed in the past in many parts of the province through the almost criminal negligence of government officials in allowing settlers to go to places under conditions which were impossible commercially. It was impossible for them to make a decent living or to bring up their families in a decent manner. In some cases the government had had to come to the rescue and it cost considerable money.

The plan of having a man appointed who should supervise settlement was the one he supported. When a section of the country was to be settled, a road should be built first to connect it with the outside. There must be a market for the products. He instanced the Cape Scott and other districts on Vancouver Island and the Naas Valley in Northern B.C. where settlement had preceded roads and where settlers had left because there was no market. It was the duty of any government, Mr. Gwyer thought, to prevent women and children being taken to inaccessible places.

Mr. Gwyer urged that this matter

The results were remarkable and quick—in fact the next day long-hoped-for relief became a happy reality."
