Liberals Claim 141 Seats in the Federal Election on Monday; Conservatives Are Allowed 102

Would Give Government Lead of 27 Members Over Opposition Groups Combined—Only Two Seats Placed in Doubtful Column

OTTAWA, July 26:—Summarizing its Dominion-wide survey of Monday's general election prospects, the National Liberal Bureau today issued a forecast which claimed for the government a representation of 141, with a possibility of 143 members, in the next parliament. The Conservative party and minor groups were conceded 102 seats with two constituencies doubtful. Previous sectional forecasts emanating from the National Liberal Bureau took account of the gains which the Liberals would make at the

AUSTRALIAN LUMBER EMBARGO

Inspiring Address Given By H. G. Fowler of B. C. Products Bureau Before Local Chamber of Commerce

Members of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce and others last evening heard a most informing and inspiring address from H. G. Fowler of the B. C. Products Bureau on "The Industrial Development of B. C." Mr. Fowler, who is a fluent and forceful speaker, told of the progress made in the province during the past few years and painted a vision of possibilities for the future. He assembled facts and figures to prove his case and urged the discarding of the blue glasses and adoption of a more optimistic viewpoint for the worst was past and progress might be expected from now on. He said in part:

Federal Election Campaign Is Converging In Prince Rupert After Two Strenuous Months

After two months of strenuous campaigning by both parties, the federal election contest in Skeena riding is converging today upon Prince Rupert, the most important point in the large constituency, and the Liberals and Conservatives alike will make their final appeals for suffrage here tonight. Election day will find both candidates in the city. J. C. Brady, Conservative, is due home on the steamer Prince Rupert this evening after spending the week at Anxox. Alice Arm, Stewart and Premier. He is reported to have had a good reception in the north. Olof Hanson is due in the city by train tomorrow after campaigning during the past few days at Terrace, Hazelton, Smithers and other interior points. Mr. Hanson was also well received at those points.

The Political Corner

Vol. 1. Saturday, July 26, 1930 No. 39.

Brady's Usefulness to Skeena

No fair minded person will deny that Mr. Brady has done everything in his power to get what he could for his district. He would be an extraordinary politician had he not done so. Our criticism of him is that he permitted himself to be used by the Bennetts to pick chestnuts out of the political fire for the Tory party, thereby stultifying himself as a useful member for Skeena. Whenever the Tory leader thought it timely to make political capital, the local member allowed himself to be thrust forward to obstruct whatever constructive legislation the government presented. This was never shown to better advantage than when Mr. Brady—egged on to oppose Canada's natural growth to nationhood—spoke in the House against the creation of the Canadian embassies abroad; nor when he danced to Bennett's music in opposing the Fraser River Salmon Treaty, which treaty had been demanded and endorsed by the Provincial Conservative Party.

It will be remembered how, when Mr. Brady was called upon at a public meeting in Prince Rupert to explain his action regarding this treaty, he told his audience he did not have the time then to set forth his reasons but would do so at a later date. It may be noted in passing that this later date never arrived and it is quite fair to say that Mr. Brady would never have opposed the treaty had it not been to please Mr. Bennett. When a member in opposition for party advantage takes the part of an eternal obstructionist; when he continually raises his voice in factious and irresponsible criticism, he thereby loses his usefulness in the House and the government in power will not be disposed to grant even his reasonable requests. It is possible for the shepherd to cry "Wolf!" once too often.
