SIXTY KILLED IN BOSTON DISASTER

Terrible Catastrophe As Passenger Steamer Crashes Into Carrier

People Lost Their Lives in Flaming Sea of Floating Oil
After Tanker Ship Burst Into Flames

BOSTON, June 11:—A flaming sea of floating oil claimed the lives of possibly 60 persons last night in Massachusetts Bay as the passenger ship Fairfax crashed into an unidentified oil tanker during a dense fog. Eleven persons were seriously injured. It is believed that the entire crew of the tanker, numbering 40, perished as the vessel cracked up and disappeared a few minutes after the crash. Eighteen passengers and members of the Fairfax crew are also missing and are believed dead.

The Fairfax ploughed into the side of the tanker and, before the ships broke apart, the tanker, apparently loaded with oil, burst into flames. Blazing oil, being poured on the surface of the sea and swept by waves, enveloped the fore part of the passenger liner.

Several passengers and members of the crews who were on the decks at the time jumped overboard as the burning liquid covered the open spaces.

CHARGE IS CUT DOWN

Charles Oliver Has Now to Answer Only to Charge of Common Assault

VERNON, June 11:—Following strong argument by defense counsel that Oliver could not be charged with an offence compounded from two charges, Chief Justice Aulay Morrison, at the opening of the trial, agreed to eliminate the first part of the indictment and Charles Oliver now faces a charge of common assault only in connection with an assault upon Dr. Victor E. Latimer in Penticton last November.

Before the opening of the case, the Grand Jury returned a true bill against Oliver on two counts of forcible seizure and unlawful assault in connection with the tar and feathering incident.

Oliver pleaded not guilty to the charges.

Two Members of Crew Had Narrow Escape When Cannery Tender Was Burned Monday in Portland Canal

Two Scandinavian members of the crew had a narrow escape with their lives on Monday night when an explosion occurred aboard the 50-foot cannery tender Kitwanga in Portland Canal and the vessel burned to the water's edge two miles from shore. The two men owe their lives to Harry Welda of the trolly boat Lillian who picked them out of the water just as they were about to give up from exhaustion. The Kitwanga is believed to be a total loss.

The Kitwanga was travelling from Mill Bay cannery, to which it was attached, toward Somerville Island and was about two miles from its destination when the explosion occurred about 9 o'clock in the evening. In the excitement, the rowboat aboard the vessel was lost and the two men jumped into the water. A number of trollers were in the vicinity and Welda finally picked the drowning men up.

Hindu Leaders Are Not So Favorable, However, To Official Document

Discussion of First Volume Overshadows All Other Indian Affairs—London Press Eulogizes Work of Commission

LONDON, June 11:—Discussion of the first volume of Sir John Simon's Indian government report overshadows all other developments in the Indian situation. The Indian press does not take so kindly, however, to the initial instalment which has been thoroughly analyzed as had been hoped. Hindu leaders have criticized the report severely and it has fewer friends among Congress spokesmen now than it had before publication.

London newspapers pay tribute to the achievement of the Simon commission, emphasize its importance, praise the unanimity of its members and express likelihood that, whatever recommendations may be contained in the second and final release on June 24, the self-determination of native India remains a matter of the distant future.

A Plea For British Fair Play

Canada invites good citizens of all nationalities to come to her shores as immigrants and offers them after they have been here five years to make them British subjects and to give them every right of British or Canadian nationality. This includes the highest honors of our country without condition or stint. It would be mean, undeserving of us and un-British to suggest anything else.

Is it fair and sportsmanlike for us to make this offer to deserving citizens and then in the next breath say that we do not want one of these citizens (who has proven his loyalty and his worth to our country) to be our representative in parliament?

If we do say so then we are acting a lie because we have given our national solemn undertaking and promise to such man that we will make him one of us and give him all the privileges we enjoy if he will but come to our land and prove a worthy citizen.

This truth is recognized not only all over Canada but throughout the United States as well. One has only to read the names on the roll of legislators of the House of Congress in the States and of the House of Commons at Ottawa to see that many of these legislators bear the names of Scandinavian and other lands.

Moreover if any of us go back for two or at the most three generations we will find that our ancestors all emigrated to Canada and were on an exact par with those who have come to our shores during the last generation.

Let us hear no more of this cheap and undeserving talk about our good citizens of foreign extraction.

It is unworthy of Canadians who are building up in this free western land a nation destined to be one of the great nations of the earth.
