Trappers Coming Out From Northern Wilds Plunged Through Ice

E. Tryant, Oscar Running and Olof Klevent Had Spent Winter in Wilderness and Were Returning to Civilization

PEACE RIVER, Alta., April 7:-E. Tryant, Oscar Running and Olof Klevent, making their way back to civilization after having spent the winter trapping in the wilds of the north, were drowned when they went through the ice on the Peace River a few miles north of here last Friday. Three of their companions escaped.

With the spring thaw now on, the Peace River ice is becoming very treacherous. While it is still quite thick and apparently safe enough in some places, in others it has all gone.
