Too Much Work At the Cannery

C. Senday, bookkeeper and accountant at the Claxton Cannery, was brought to town on Saturday afternoon on the Princess Mary in an unconscious condition.

Mr. Senday was found in his office unconscious and it is thought that the strain of long hours of intensive work consequent on the big salmon run had proved too much for him. It was found impossible to bring him to at the cannery and it was not until the boat had almost docked here that he revived. He was ___ lattended to by Dr. L. W. Kergin and is now resting easily.
