DRY AGENT IS ABUSED

Taken For Ride by Gang of Bootleggers and Badly Beaten Monday Night

SEATTLE, Jan. 30.—Deal D. Dunning, under-cover agent, was taken for a ride Monday night and terribly beaten. He was taken to the hospital by the police who found him wandering aimlessly dazed about the streets in the southern part of the city.

The police say he was kidnapped by a gang of bootlegger suspects whom he and another under-cover agent attempted to trap in a whiskey deal. He was set upon, they say, by three men and two women.

Just before Dunning was picked up by the police he had stumbled into M. S. Jackson, a south end resident. He asked Jackson to telephone police headquarters. While Jackson was telephoning Dunning wandered away. He was found by a prowler car detail later. Dunning, in telling about his experiences, said one woman in an automobile strangled him, while the other occupants took turns in beating him. He said he snapped his revolver at them several times but the cartridges failed to explode.

After driving about some time and beating him, he said he was thrown out of the machine on the highway toward Tacoma, when the car became stalled temporarily.

FEWER GO OVER LINE

Net Loss to Canada in Population Last Year is 82 Persons

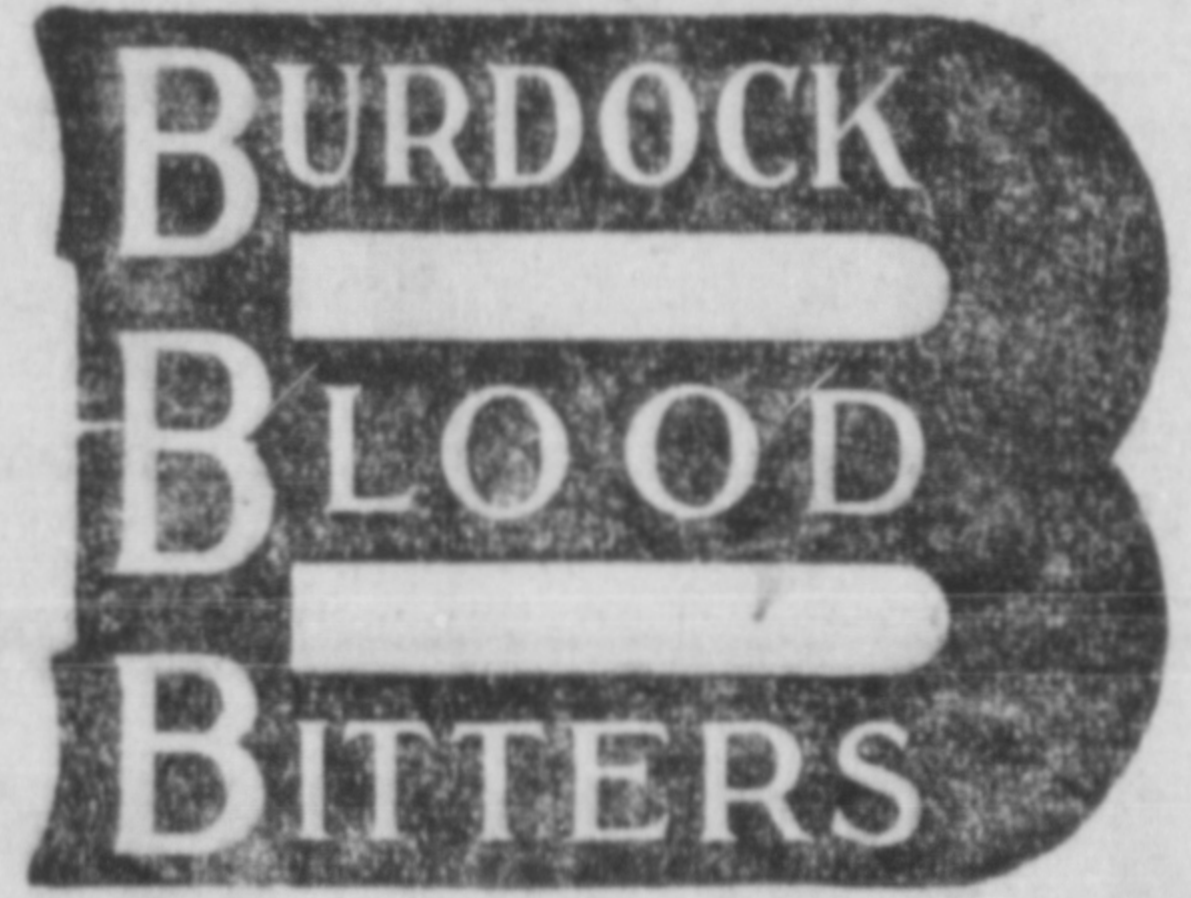

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The shift of population over the Canadian-American boundary is now near a balance. Proposals in congress for restriction of immigration from other countries of the western hemisphere to the United States have brought out testimony on the matter and have directed attention to figures which record the migration of population north and south. Among the figures is discovered data for 1929 listing as emigrants from the Dominion 64,440 immigrants 32,560 plus 33,798 returning Canadians, indicating a net loss to Canada of 82.

This situation has been brought about by a decline in emigration from the Dominion rather than an increase in immigration. A high point for emigration was touched in 1924 when 200,690 people moved south. Analysis of the figures shows that emigration of native-born Canadians has decreased rapidly. For example, in 1926 native Canadians to the number of 82,452 emigrated to the United States. In 1929 the count had fallen to 49,009.

Pimples On Face Thought Everyone Was Looking At Her

Miss F. Foster, Nanaimo, B.C., writes:—"I used to suffer, something awful, with pimples on my face, and never felt as if I wanted to go out as I thought everyone was looking at me. "A friend advised me to use so I got a bottle and it worked wonders, and after using the second one to look at my face one would never think I ever had a pimple."

TO CLAIM SON'S BODY

Ole Eielson of Fargo Coming to Alaska; May Be Buried in New York

FARGO, N.D., Jan. 30.—Ole Eielson yesterday began the long journey to Alaska to claim the body of his son, Colonel Ben Eielson, after it is found.

He intends to bring the body for burial in the Hatton, North Dakota, cemetery, and place it beside Ben's mother.

Arriving here from Hatton, he left for Seattle where he will sail February 5 for the northland. Before leaving he extended sympathies to the parents of Earl Borland, the death companion of Eielson. Eielson will be met in Seattle by his daughter, Adelaine, who is a teacher at Wenatchee.

NOME, Alaska, Jan. 30.—Alfred Lomen yesterday wired Graham Grosvenor, president of the Aviation Corporation in New York City, suggesting that Colonel Ben Eielson, "father of aviation in Alaska," be buried in the Arlington cemetery.

Mr. Lomen added that this should be done providing the family of Eielson is agreeable to the arrangement. He says the aviator belongs to the nation.

Preparations are under way here for some sort of services to be held in Nome upon the arrival of the bodies.

Both of the Fairchild planes which took off from Teller arrived at the Nanuk at North Cape at 2:15 Monday without incident. Crosson and Gillam returned to the Nanuk from the scene of the wreck late Monday. He said the bodies had not been recovered but that digging for them continues.

MAJOR HAROLD OAKES, WHO HAD CHARGE OF CANADIAN EXPEDITION ON EIELSON SEARCH, HERE TODAY.

sible that the Canadians may fly out with these new machines unless they, too, should, be sold.

Major Oakes and his party left Toronto on December 15 last and reached Fairbanks on December 26. The planes were already there and several days were spent in testing them out. Weather then became so bad that the aviators could not leave Fairbanks and there was considerable delay. Flying by way of Nome and Teller, they finally reached North Cape a day or so ago. By that time American rescue flyers had found the wreck of Eielson's plane in Siberia. The Canadian flyers, based beside the trading ship Nanuk, left a couple of days ago on a 400-mile flight in an endeavor to dig the bodies of Eielson and Borland out of the snow and bring them out. Up to this morning no word had been received as to whether or not this task had met with success.

Major Oakes himself came out by way of Seward, which place he left on January 20. He boarded the Princess Mary at Juneau. Major Oakes is one of Canada's best known airmen. He organized the Western Canada Airways and later joined the service of the Mineral Exploration Co. He had charge at Winnipeg last fall of the search for the McAlpine party.

"We are all very sorry at the way it has turned out," said Major Oakes this morning in commenting on the discovery of the Eielson-Borland plane wreck and the supposed deaths of the two intrepid Alaskan explorers. "As time passed and we were unable to start on the search, our hopes for their safety dwindled, although there was still a faint hope that they might be safe. However, it seems to be all over now. Just the luck of the trail!"

ABOUT THE STOCK EXCHANGE

A STOCK Exchange is essentially a Public Service doing its best to make trading secure and efficient.

While this work has far-reaching results, the first principles of operation are simple. Somebody gives a broker an order. By cable or phone the broker's "floor"-man gets the order for execution. The price paid for the stock is the official quotation on the "floor" at exactly that time. The seller writes a triplicate record of the transaction, timed mechanically to with a tenth-second. Buyer, seller and Exchange each retain one copy. So every sale is permanently recorded and made known on the ticker.

Stock prices on the floor of the Exchange are controlled by orders received from the Public to buy and sell. The Exchange exercises no control over fluctuations. Like a loud-speaker it simply broadcasts the trading minute by minute. Regulations governing trading were accepted by the Provincial Parliament in session in 1927. No trading can take place between members of the "floor." The Stock Exchange itself has nothing to do with arrangements between brokers and clients. Being members of the Exchange, brokers are directly servants of the investing Public and must follow the instructions of their clients. Every broker depends on his business to keep the confidence of his clients. Obviously, it is against his own best interests in any way to do anything but to supply clients with the facts concerning a company or a market situation.

The principles governing the Vancouver Stock Exchange are similar to those of London and New York. And as London's and New York's exchanges have performed great services to business in Great Britain and the United States, so must one agree that the Exchange in Vancouver has influenced investors to pay attention to industries in Western Canada.

The securities of these industries have been affected by recent unsettled conditions. Whether prices have been high or low, their real value consists in what properties can earn from year to year. Recent market movements have been largely illusory. Western Canada's resources and productive capacities have not been affected. On the contrary the FACTS indicate even greater development. The Stock Exchange and its members stand pledged to play their part in making this progress sound and wholesome.

1 TO GIVE THE FACTS

2 TO DELIVER PROMPTLY

3 TO TRADE EFFICIENTLY

4 TO INFORM THE WORLD

These four services are important to business . . . their truthful performance a matter of honor and integrity to all houses desiring continued good relations with the Public and the Stock Exchange.
