Can Anyone Blame the Great Port of Vancouver If It Is Very Sore With Such As This?

Much to the disgust of Vancouver, Prince Rupert but not Vancouver as a grain route is mentioned in Pitman's Commercial Atlas which is used as a text book in the schools of Winnipeg and which one of the members of the Winnipeg school board is seeking to have banned from the schools of that city.

The atlas, in its introduction, under the heading "Trade Routes of the Pacific," states that there are only two great routes. One is from San Francisco to Manila and it is anticipated that Prince Rupert will become an important centre. "No mention is made of Vancouver as a route to the Orient."

In discussing the Pacific Coast line on Page 92, the Atlas says: "Prince Rupert has a magnificent harbor and promises to be one of the great ports of the future now that the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is completed with this town as its western terminus. No doubt, also, the opening of the Panama Canal will influence its future very considerably."

Again no mention is made of the port of Vancouver.

Second Rescue Ship Is Coming Here Tomorrow - Pilot Dorbrandt Unsuccessful 3q Far In Quest For Missing Trio

VANCOUVER, Oct. 27:-Pilot Renahan will not take off. before tomorrow for the north to join the search for Capt. E. J. A. Burke, missing Atlin commercial aviator, it was announced this afternoon.

ATLIN, Oct. 27:-Pilot Frank Dorbrandt and his companion, Pilot Cope, arrived here yesterday afternoon from Telegraph Creek. On Saturday the aviators made an unsuccessful attempt to reach here but they were forced to return to Telegraph Creek when they ran into a blizzard over the summit, 130 miles north of Telegraph Creek.

This morning the flyers planned tox hop off for Liard Post in search for Capt. E. J. A. Burke of Vancouver and two others who have been missing since they started a flight 15 days ago. Late yesterday Dorbrandt flew to Teslin and Wolf Lakes. On his return, he reported all the small lakes frozen over.
