Shop at Home

Shop Today and

Prince Rupert merchants are offering some great values for Christmas this year. Many of them have dropped their prices to keep pace with the reductions made in the great centres of population.

This is a good time to buy. Get the shopping done before Christmas is too near and the stores are crowded with eager men and women anxious to grab for anything. Most Prince Rupert people are not affected by the hard times. Many are better off today than they were last year because their money goes farther. They can buy more if they wish for their salaries remain the same. Friends need remembering just the same this year as in the past. Some of them need it more. Those who are able to do so would do well to shop mornings because at that time the merchants and their assistants have time to attend to your wants.

Read the Daily News advertisements, for they will help you in your selection.

PRINCE RUPERT DAILY NEWS

Hampers For

Already fourteen hampers have been arranged for needy families n the city and there will be several outside, according to a report made by the Salvation Army for their Christmas hamper distribution. Doubtless more yet will be required.

In addition there will be the big Christmas dinner for Christmas day when all unemployed will be made welcome as well as others who have nowhere else to go. It is expected to be the biggest dinner ever given by the Army here.
