His new challenger, "Shamrock V," as trim and frail as a thoroughbred racehorse, will start the dangerous voyage across the Atlantic ocean under her own sail, according to rules of the contest. The voyage will be as epic as the trophy race itself. There will be no wireless aboard the Shamrock V It was decided that Wednesday and she will carry a crew of 22. A month's rations and fresh water will be carried. The Shamrock V will be accompanied by Sir Thomas' steam yacht "Erin" which will act as a tender. The route will be by way of the Azores, where the Erin will stop to refuel.

> The Shamrock V will be yawlrigged for the ocean voyage, although she will carry a towering Bermuda rig for the actual races. Her deep-sea rig will include a trysail, a squaresail, a jib and staysail. A jigger mast, specially stepped in for the trip, will complete the yawl-rig. A supply of oil is being carried by the Erin and this will be used freely on the sea in case of rough weather to give the Shamrock V what protection is possible from the tremendous waves of the Atlantic. Capt. Ned Heard will direct sailing operations, while Sir Thomas will cross on a liner to meet the Shamrock V on her arrival in New York. Capt. Heard is a veteran in attempts to win the trophy. He is about 50 now. At 23 he sailed as seaman in the third "Shamrock" That was in 1903. In the past two races he was first mate.

Australian Oranges Arrive in Vancouver Today and Will Be Here Wednesday

One of the first fruits of the Trade within the Empire policy of the Mackenzie King Government will be seen this week in Prince Rupert when local stores are flooded with Australian oranges, the first ever to come here, it is understood. This has been made possible by the removal of the duty.

The shipment which arrived in Vancouver today from the other end of the world is of the navel variety, the same that were supolied from California during the past spring and winter. With the alternating of seasons western Canadians will not be able to secure nazel oranges all the year round and will have the satisfaction of knowing they are grown within the British Empire.

The oranges are expected in Prince Rupert Wednesday.
