Labor Leader Gives Interview.

John P. Frey, an executive officer of the molders' union and a member of the American Labor Commission to the Allies, in an interview published in the Metropolitan Magazine is reported to have said in part as follows:

"Stove-making is one of the oldest manufacturing industries in America; it was also one of the first in which labor organized. Almost from the beginning the employers were organized, and one of the purposes of their organization was to prevent the employees from doing likewise. Thus there was no common ground—as is the case with some of our great industries today. It was a very bitter war that was waged in the stove industry from 1855 to 1890. Each side strove to secure its ends by might rather than by negotiation or convention. There was a complete denial of democracy, the attitude of the employers being the historic one of the industrial Bourbons: 'This is our business and we will run it as we please.' They even went so far in the seventies as to import large numbers of molders from continental Europe."

Succession of Strikes Followed by Treaty.

During all these years the industry was marked by such a succession of strikes and lockouts that there was almost no time when there wasn't one somewhere. One in 1866 and another in 1868 were almost national in scope, the first being forced by the molders and the second by the foundrymen. Many of the foundries went into bankruptcy and many of the men lost their homes and were nationally blacklisted. Weary of this continuous and disastrous warfare, leaders of the Stove Founders National Defense Association and of the International Molders Union began, finally in 1890, to feel each other out. In 1891 a peace treaty was negotiated and ratified between the two national organizations.

"It was the first agreement of the kind in the history of the world; and it is highly significant that it has been entirely successful, though at the time it was received coldly and with suspicion by many of the employers and by a large number of the men. Each side questioned the good faith of the other. The scheme was unheard of, it was revolutionary, it robbed the employers of their business, it was absurd for workmen to think themselves capable of passing on any part of the business, etc. In fact the opposition to this peace treaty and its plan for abolishing war in the stove business, manifested in many instances, equaled that now being shown by some senators toward the peace treaty with Germany and the League of Nations."

Settle Own Family Differences.

"The agreement began by laying down the principle that as the foundrymen and the molders understood their common problems better than anyone else, arbitration by outsiders would be eliminated. There's where the democratic idea came in. They said: 'We will provide a method by which we may settle our family differences ourselves. If we can't settle them nobody can.' That is democracy in industry for you away back in 1891—though nobody gave it that dignified appellation then. The treaty of peace was declared to be above the constitutions of either side. It was agreed that a committee of twelve, six from each organization, should meet together once every year not only to determine what the terms of employment—wages and hours—should be, but also the conditions of labor and the shop rules and regulations. These twelve men are the law-makers of the stove industry and they have been making laws successfully for 27 years—so successfully that there have been neither strikes nor lockouts in that period. They are representative of the whole industry and their laws are as democratically made as the municipal law of the land. Being made by the industry for the industry and not forced on it by outsiders or autocratically imposed by one group of insiders, they are accepted in good spirit and obeyed, whether liked or not. If either side feels that the decision of the supreme body is unjust, it contents itself with waiting for any opportunity to repeal it just as political parties do in political life. Every question is settled by a majority vote. There is no umpire or referee."

Grood Outlook Is Cultivated.

"The committee views the industry as a whole; each half understands the peculiar problems of the members of the other half. Having the broader view, the committee-men often find themselves more advanced than their constituencies. Such a situation is patiently manipulated or 'played.' To make my meaning clear let me explain that sometimes one side will come into a meeting with a proposal that is so well backed by facts and reason that the other side immediately concedes its righteousness. 'But,' they may say, 'though this proposal is right, we must vote against its adoption at this time because our members do not agree with us. To adopt it under these circumstances would be to invite trouble. Give us time to go back to our people and educate them up to this excellent proposal.'"

F you had a sore place, and had to choose between two remedies, one of which went to the sore spot direct, and the other by a round-about way, which would you prefer? Undoubtedly, the one that gets there direct!

That is just the reason for people's preference for Peps for ailments of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs. Peps gets there direct, because they are breathable, while remedies which are swallowed only go to the stomach.

Dissolve Peps in the mouth, and the vapor which is liberated is carried by the breath direct to the breathing passages and minute air cells of the lungs, destroying all germs, and soothing, healing, and strengthening the delicate membranes.

Once you try Peps you will never use any other remedy for coughs, colds, sore throat, bronchitis, tightness across the chest, night cough, laryngitis or asthma. All dealers 50c. box.
