ALICE ARM, Jan. 16 .- Work on the big development tunnel being driven on the Sunrise property on McGrath Mountain, near Alice Arm, by Kitsault-Eagle Silver Mines Ltd. had been temporarily suspended. The cause of the cessation was the difficulty experienced in getting supplies up the mountain during the heavy snows. Work will be resumed in the spring.

The tunnel has been driven a distance of 1150 feet and two crosscuts have also been driven. When work ceased the tunnel was in a good mineralized formation, and it is considered that no great distance will now have to be driven before the big ore body showing on the surface is cut through.

The Kitsault-Eagle Co. are to be congratulated upon the tenacity they have displayed in driving the tunnel, and credit is due to G. W. McMorris, president of the company, for the able manner he has handled operations.

Is Hopeful For Woodbine Mine

Hugh McGuire, Who Is in Charge Empire. He says that Juneau is of Operations, Passed Through City Yesterday

Results obtained in some 400 feet of diamond drilling at the Woodbine mine in the Portland Canal area justify further exploration work in lion dollars in gold last year. From search of a large low grade ore body in the opinion of Hugh McGuire, who is in charge of operations at the mine, and who passed through the city yesterday aboard the Prince Rupert, returning to Stewart after a brief business trip to Vancouver.

Mr. McGuire is arranging for an additional 2000 feet of drilling to be carried out. If tests prove successful and indicate the presence of an appreciable quantity of ore, a new tunnel will be driven in from Cascade Creek, about 175 feet below the present high level tunnel.

No strike of very rich ore is anticipated, according to Mr. McGuire, but he hopes to block out sufficient ore of low grade nature to justify operation of the mine.

Why Prince Rupert Not Making More Headway

An interesting visitor to the city yesterday on the Princess Norah was J. E. Pegues, editor of the Juneau more prosperous today than it has ever been. Last year was the best in its history and the prospects for this year are equally good. Most of the prosperity is due to the operation of the Alaska-Juneau mine, which shipped three and a half milten to eleven thousand tons of rock are crushed daily, averaging about $1.15 a ton, with the operating a nice profit for the year of approximately $1,200,000.

In addition to the mining, halibut landings increased 50 per cent last year and a new capitol building is being erected at a cost of $800,000. Mr. Pegues could not understand why Prince Rupert was not very SUITS! SUITS! at the shipyard, the mill running and shipping regularly, the fishing business what it is and the railway and other sources of income bringing business to the city.

Heating Hospital Difficult Matter

Board Hears of Certain Troubles During Cold Spell; Labor Council Discussed It

Ald. S. D. Macdonald reported to the hospital board, at its monthly meeting last night, that the Trades & Labor Council had recently discussed the heating of the Prince Rupert General Hospital. None but complimentary remarks were to be heard as to the treatment given in the institution, but it had been stated that the place was sometimes rather uncomfortably cold for Editor of Daily Paper Cannot See patients. He and Ald. Brown had explained to the council that everything possible was being done to keep the building warm.

Miss Jean Harrison, R.N., lady superintendent, reported that it was almost impossible to heat certain parts of the building during such cold spells as the present one. Extra heaters had to be commissioned in such parts as the operating room, case room and nursery, and then it was difficult to maintain heat.
