Rhodesia Sends Eggs to England

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The first consignment of eggs from Southern Rhodesia, comprising 368 cases, each of 30 dozen, was offered for sale on the London market recently, and met with a favorable reception, wholesale prices beginning at 14 shillings per 120 eggs. An official of Empire Dairies, Limited, the dairy importing agency of the Overseas Farmers' Co-operative Federation, stated that the eggs had arrived in a satisfactory condition, considering their long journey in cold storage. He had found them to be well graded and attractively packed and in every essential they compared with eggs from the Union of South Africa. There is stated to be every likelihood of regular autumn supplies from the colony.

SPORT CHAT

It is bad enough to undergo the humiliation of shooting a cow for a deer but a Nova Scotia hunter had to hand over $25 to the owner of the cow in addition. The son of a nimrod, on hearing a noise in the underbrush, took deliberate aim and fired. Not waiting for the smoke to clear away, he rushed to the underbrush and found he had shot a cow. Before he had recovered from the shock, the infuriated owner of the animal arrived on the scene and demanded redress. The rifle has been put up for sale. Many hunters, including most of the major league baseball stars, go into Nova Scotia each year for deer and moose.

Once again the women of England have been the pioneers of another sporting adventure. At Greenwood, history was made by six women members of the Greenwood Amateur Trotting Horse Drivers' Club, when for the first time in this sport, they engaged in a trotting race, and what is more, proved their capabilities beyond all question. The six ladies who so successfully ventured on the sport, were Miss Byron, Mrs. C. Money, Miss Florrie Gough, Miss Vera Salter, Mrs. J. Leonard Jones and Miss Ethel Knapman. Miss Byron, a gallant winner behind the pacer Volo Jay, was engaged during the war in work in the Army Remount Department; Miss Salter has hunted, and has driven at Richmond and other important shows, while Mrs. Money is a recognized horsewoman.
