PENALTY FOR NON-PAYMENT

The city council at its meeting Wednesday night decided to ask for the abolition of the fifteen per cent penalty for non-payment of taxes and ask that the penalty be set at something between fifteen and five. Nanaimo city is asking for reduction to five per cent.

The penalty for non-payment is imposed for the purpose of inducing people to pay their taxes on time so that the city may not have to borrow money to carry on the necessary work. If some do not pay others must pay more to allow the work to proceed, the rate being set that much higher to provide for such a contingency. Under present conditions taxes are coming in well and people are making an effort to pay up regularly. If a change is made there is no telling what may be the result.

It is claimed that in Ontario the rate is five per cent but five per cent means much more to a person in Ontario than it does in British Columbia. Money is not valued in this province as it is anywhere else in the Dominion. The people look at things differently. It is hardly likely that the legislature will agree to reduce the penalty to five per cent because the members understand the situation, but there is a possibility that it will be reduced to something like ten per cent, and that may be a good thing. If there is hardship without corresponding benefit in the present system, then it should be changed, but if the benefits are not commensurate with the disabilities no change should be made.

RAILWAYS GIVE WORK

Good news arrived from Ottawa Wednesday when it was announced that the railways would provide for ten thousand men during the winter on construction and improvement work. That is a pretty good start in the employment campaign, but a great deal more will be necessary. Provision must be made so that none will go hungry as a result of lack of employment.

Many men are not as drab as they look.
