Opening of Big League Scason Finds All Teams Brimming Over With Confidence

NEW YORK, April 14:-The note of optimism rings louder and clearer than ever from all sides as Major League baseball teams open the 1930 season today in Washington and tomerrow around the rest of the circuits. Despite several training injuries and uncertainties here and there arising from other causes there is hardly a team in either league which does not believe itself capable of making a real pennant fight or at least finishing in the first division.

The two champions of 1929, the Philadelphia Athletics and the Chicago Cubs, are brimming over with confidence that they will repeat their triumphs.
