

BARITONE HERE FOR CONCERT

Frederick Taggart Will Sing and Symphony Orchestra Play
Tomorrow Night.

Frederick Taggart who is here to sing at the Symphony Orchestra concert on Sunday night is a baritone whose name is famous in world-wide musical circles. Mr. Taggart comes from Glasgow, that musical city, where his father, Bailie Taggart, for many years conducted the Glasgow Select Choir, an organization which has toured the world many times with unqualified success.

Mr. Taggart is a brother of Jenny Taggart, a soprano of distinction, who is also of international fame. He sang for many years in the choir of Glasgow Cathedral, before important business brought him west. Those who listen to Mr. Taggart on Sunday night are assured of hearing something worth while.

It is understood that the Symphony Orchestra has a few really select numbers to offer and the probability is that they will again play to a crowded house.

REV. R. F. TAYLOR IS LEAVING NEXT WEEK

Will Preach at Anglican Church and Mrs. and Miss Taylor
Will be Entertained
By Friends.

In about a week from now Rev. R. F. Taylor will leave Prince Rupert. He has made his headquarters here for some time past since being connected with the railway service, but now, his health being improved, proposes returning to the work of the church. Before leaving, however, he will preach here. On Sunday morning he will sing "The Holy City" at the Anglican Church and in the evening he will preach in that church.

Mr. Taylor is well known here and all along the line. He was formerly at Aylmer, Ontario, but for several years has made his headquarters here. He may go to North Dakota, to which diocese he has been invited by the Bishop. Mrs. Taylor and Miss Ruby are also leaving. They are going to Montreal, where Miss Taylor will again take up her musical studies at McGill University. They will all be missed for they have a very wide circle of friends. It is understood that some social events will be given in their honor before they go.
