Each boat towed a Another important attraction there The river boat Mr. Johnston every direction. found most interesting. The food to Douglas Lodge, Fort St James, B.C. was wonderful and the cook was who had lived practically all their lives on northern rivers and understood their vagaries. It took three days to make the 185 miles up the river but the return occupied only

Shortly after passing the Canadian customs they saw a moose and it tried to cross the river near the boat. The skipper tried to lassoo it but failed. They also saw other moose, bear and mountain goats. At night they tied up at an island the river and enjoyed a concert ashore by the light of a bonfire.

The speaker told of the glaciers, of the wonders of the grand canyon, of interesting things at Jackson's landing. Mr. and Mrs. Johnston went ashore at one place and picked themselves a bowl of wild strawberries which proved delicous. At Jackson's landing there was a tame moose which insisted on entering the house and upseting things. He was too big for a pet and yet the people hated to de-

Telegraph Creek was described as a trading post with the Hudson's Bay Co's store and one independent trading concern. Most of the nhabitants were Indians. Hundreds of dogs which were used in winter for transportation were kept there; during summer. One Indian looked after a pack of 200.

The wonderful flowers on the banks of the river and the many other attractive features of the trip much enjoyed by the members.
