LET US REFORM THE WORLD

Thousands and possibly millions of good people have comply with Mr. Brooksbank's been seized with the idea that they had a mission to reform wishes, would necessitate the resthe world but only a dozen or so made any permanent cinding of the old bylaw and the mark on it. Most of them never reformed anything except introduction and passage of a new themselves. As they grew older they discovered that the one all of which would take some foundations of the customs, habits, religions and thoughts six weeks' time. It was very unforof the world lay deeper and on more solid ground than the work should be held up. He was they had thought. Even Christianity was to some extent inclined to believe, however, that grafted on the religions that went before so that today we the asphaltic sidewalk would lend have "Sunday," the day set apart for the worship of the sun.

This sun worship is again gaining strength. Many peo- tion in support of Mr. Brooksbank's ple on Sunday leave everything and go out to the open request to withdraw from the asfields, the sea beaches, the parks, the various places where phaltic sidewalk bylaw was not sufthey can enjoy the sun unhampered by the walls of buildings or the machinations of men. The forces of nature triumph over the petty efforts of those who would oppose them. From the sun they get health and strength, are cured from diseases that afflict and are adorned by it with instance, he was not in favor of an artistic paint.

The genius is a man who creates new ideas. A the sidewalk, a cement sidewalk with retaining wall would suit his purpose better than the asphaltie sidewalk. Accordingly, he applied last night to the council for permission to withdraw his name from the bylaw providing for the asphaltic sidewalk and, instead, build himself a cement sidewalk subject to city requirements. Other property; owners concerned consented to the proposal of Mr. Brooksbank.

Mayor Orme pointed out that, to itself to Mr. Brooksbank's purpose just as readily as the cement. Further, he pointed out that the petificiently signed.

Ald. Rudderham stated that as a! general rule he was in favor of giving the people what they wanted in such cases as this but, in the present granting the request. What guarantee was there, if Mr. Brooksbank's request were met, that the new bylaw providing for the work would go through? He was not in favor of rescinding the asphaltic sidewalk bylaw but, instead, would go right ahead with the work as now provided for. As a matter of fact, Mr. Brooksbank's requirements could be met with the asphaltic sidewalk. Ald. Collart saw no good reason In answer to a question by Ald fere with Mr. Brooksbank's plans. On a vote of four to three, the amendment was passed after some further discussion. It is felt that Mr Brooksbank will fall in line and accept the asphaltic sidewalk since, if he fails to do so, resultant formalities will prevent the work from being proceeded with this year and

RUPERT'S INFERIORITY COMPLEX

There is a prevalent idea in some quarters that Prince why all the rest of the people con-Rupert cannot compete with other parts of the world; cerned should forego their sidewalk that Prince Rupert people are not as clever as those in other places and that everything foreign is better than that Rudderham. City Engineer F. N. produced right here. This is a totally wrong idea. Prince Good expressed the opinion that an Rupert can hold her own anywhere in the world. To quote asphaltic sidewalk would not interan instance:

Recently the Daily News sent out a circular letter in con- and Ald. Black that the Brooksbank nection with its business. One of these went to a man in petition be not entertained. The letter was written locally, printed locally and dealt with local affairs, yet it gets the unstinted commendation of a man of affairs who is closely connected with news- the rest of the work would not be papers in New York City. Surely that should be sufficient to indicate that Prince Rupert workmen in Prince Rupert would hate to see the other work shops can compete in quality and excellence of workman- held up. ship with anyone in the world.

Many of our best intentions were written in invisible ink and never developed so that the world never knew that we had them.
