Every Port Except Prince Rupert.

A despatch from Ottawa to Vancouver says that Hon. C. G. Ballantyne expects to call for tenders for two new steamers to go on the triangular run connecting Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle and also has big plans for the foreign trade in all parts of Canada.

There is not a word in the report or an intimation of any kind that Prince Rupert is to be included in the activities of the Government. Perhaps the despatch was sent out especially for Vancouver and Victoria readers and, therefore, this port was not mentioned.

Associated Board of Trade for District.

Prince Rupert has a great deal in common with other parts of northern and central British Columbia. There is a community of interest which is worth cultivating.

There are such centres as Stewart, Alice Arm, Prince George, Vanderhoof, Hazelton, Smithers, Telkwa, Terrace, Port Essington and one or two points at Queen Charlotte Islands that would benefit a good deal from the publication of a nicely illustrated booklet dealing with the country.

A good organizer is what is needed to line up the different points and show the need of concerted action. In unity there is strength.

Rupert Did Well In Victory Loan.

Prince Rupert made a very creditable record in the Victory Loan subscription. The canvassers did excellent work and the people generally responded nobly.

There has been some criticism of the cost of advertising the loan. The total amount spent in advertising is something like $300,000, or .06 per cent or three-fifths of a mill on every hundred dollars. That is very small.
