Members of the Gyro Club heard many interesting facts about the Rupert this year has been exlife history of bees from George V. Wilkinson, former local bee fancier, who was the speaker at the regular open luncheon of the club yesterday. After describing in some detail the nature of bees and their work, Mr. Wilkinson expressed the opinion that bees could not be kept commercially here. The weather here was usually so open in winter Mayor C. H. Orme. that the bees went out from their hives and would consume their winter store of honey before the winter was half over. The wind here was also harmful to bees. It was so strong at times that the bees would back to their hives.

Sid Webb, formerly on the staff of the Daily News, writes from London, England:

very lively over here. The Labor Government is a sorry affair; have done nothing to justify themselves since they have been in office. The nemployment figures are getting bigger every week, the country is being bled by the dole system. which is a pernicious system, to say the least.
