Farmers' Advocate Proves a Knocker.

The Farmers' Advocate, a paper that circulates a good deal on the Canadian prairies, goes out of its way to knock the Bulkley Valley. Anyone who knows the Bulkley and who saw the article in regard to it in the October 22 number of the Advocate will realize that the whole thing is misleading. The impression it conveys is not pleasant, especially for a journal published in a province like Manitoba.

Anyone who set out to do so could describe the Manitoba climate and conditions in such a way that no one who read it would want to live there, and yet the Manitoba climate is enjoyable, approached with the proper mental attitude. The climate of the Bulkley is far superior to that of the prairies, yet to read the article it would be imagined that it was nothing like as good.

Now that prairie farmers are coming to the Bulkley in large numbers and are enjoying the change of climate and conditions, it is possible that the Advocate will be going to them for subscriptions in the near future. We trust, however, that the farmers will remember this and other attempts to knock the district and will keep the Advocate off their list of periodicals.

Music and Song at Methodist Church.

The Methodist Church of this city is advertising a program of sacred music and song for Sunday night. It is an attractive program and one that should appeal to those who like music. It provides an opportunity to enjoy a musical evening and to take part in the singing.

The movement is worthy of all commendation and it is to be hoped that many will avail themselves of the opportunity to attend. Sunday is apt to be a dull day for many people, but there is no excuse for it when a concert of sacred music and song is provided for that evening.

Members Seen Their Duty and Done It.

Discussing the fall session of Parliament which recently closed, J. K. Munro writing in McLean's Magazine says:

"This session was presumably called to approve the Peace Treaty. It could have attended to that little chore in the same time it took another Parliament to approve the declaration of war—about five days. As a matter of fact the Treaty was approved and the result cabled to England in just about that length of time. But you'll remember that in the spring session, when members were shying at the Budget and pretending they wouldn't stay put there was a promise of some kind of increased indemnity. Well, the increase did not come along. But an all-wise and discerning Government provided something just as good—viz. and to wit—a special session with an extra indemnity of $2,500,000.

"Now be it understood that our Union statesmen, the common or garden variety of M. P., are paid by the session. But in order to count as a full session the House must sit for thirty-one days. If it sits for less than that time, members are paid at the rate of $20.00 per diem. Consequently if the members 'worked' for thirty days they would get just $600.00, while working for thirty-one days brings this well-earned reward up to $2,500.00. Under such circumstances patriotism requires that any special session worthy of the name shall sit for the full period of thirty-one days. This one did its full duty. It was hard work but the members were equal to it. On many days there was no Government business, but the members crammed the order paper with resolutions on everything from bran and shorts to the shortcomings of the Government and, by meeting late and adjourning early, they managed never to entirely run out of conversation. It was the most mournfully dull session in all political history. But the members stood it like heroes, each man 'seen his duty and done it,' and all returned home carrying the fruits of patriotism in the shape of a $2,500.00 check."
