CLARA BOW GETS REST

"It" Girl Admitted to Sanitarium Suffering From Nervous Breakdown

HOLLYWOOD, May 7.—Clara Bow, the "it" girl of the screen, who has been having rather strenuous times lately what with adventures in love and with pilfering secretaries, has been admitted to Glendale Sanitarium. She is suffering from a nervous breakdown, it is reported.

Minister Is Heard

all on the same level which could not be done. If a child were given such training as would enable and inspire him to make the most of himself in life, then that child had an ideal education.

The government alone, Mr. Hinchliffe pointed out, could not give an ideal education. After all the teachers had the children in their hands a comparatively short time. The years before school age were of great importance from an educational standpoint and the children were entirely in the hands of their parents during those years. No child that was a trouble with the teacher after going to school had been properly brought up at home during those first six years, the minister assented. Ninety-nine times out of one hundred the trouble was at home. Even after going to school, the parents had oversight over their children. There were many limitations placed on education by the government.

Government's Obligations
When was the government's obligation ended in regard to education was another important problem which nobody seemed able to solve, continued Mr. Hinchliffe. That was a question he would leave to his hearers to thresh out. He, personally, believed that in years to come the principal of limit of ability would be recognized as marking the government's responsibility. In this connection, Mr. Hinchliffe contended that the poor child should have the same opportunity of obtaining education as the rich. The minister told of how he had succeeded in getting a fund voted in this province to aid meritorious but poor pupils in getting advanced education. Something the same was being done to help deserving children of returned men through High School.

Speaking of the subject of recent legislation, Mr. Hinchliffe asked the teachers not to worry about salaries. No existing contracts or salary schedules would be interfered with and the increments would come along the same as planned. There had been no general fixed principle in the past in regard to this. The new system was designed to be more equitable. The government had no intention but to continue paying reasonable and just salaries. The intention was to devise a more equitable and fair plan to meet the requirements of different communities operating under different conditions.

Declaring that he was keenly interested in the country schools, Mr. Hinchliffe charged that the cities had been selfish in always demanding teachers with experience. Personally, he thought it would be more fitting if the teachers were given some experience under principals in city schools before being called upon to carry out the sometimes very arduous work in the country schools.

Before closing, Mr. Hinchliffe referred to the matter of cost of text books. He told of a new scheme which had been devised where text books could be bought from the department at fifteen percent discount for retail sale at a fixed maximum price. If books were not obtainable locally, they might be purchased from the text book branch. The whole idea was to make the books less costly. The department was also endeavoring to eliminate all but necessary changes in text books and to use only Canadian books.

At the opening of the meeting Mayor C. H. Orme and Mrs. Robert Blance, president of the Parent Teachers' Association, directed brief remarks of welcome to Mr. Hinchliffe.

At the conclusion of the meeting, H. C. Fraser, inspector of schools, with a fitting speech, moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Hinchliffe, this being seconded by Mrs. T. M. Spencer, chairman of the board of school trustees.

The meeting, which was well attended, was presided over by J. S. Wilson, president of the Teachers' Federation. Miss E. A. Mercer played the piano for the singing of "O Canada" at the start and "God Save the King" at the closing.
