

Suffered From Heart Trouble Became Weak and Run Down

Mrs. Wm. D. Dyer, Glensandfield, Ont., writes: "For a long period I suffered from heart trouble, and became very weak and run down. I tried various remedies, but they did me no good. One day I met a friend and told her of my trouble. She said she had had heart trouble for two years too, but after using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for a short time she had been relieved of her trouble, so I got two boxes and after taking them I was again feeling fine, and always recommend H. & N. Pills to anyone complaining of heart trouble."

THE AGE OF MAN

The intensely interesting lecture given yesterday to the ladies of the Canadian Club will doubtless start some controversy locally between the Fundamentalists who profess to believe that man was perfect until he fell in Eden and the Evolutionists who claim that man has made a gradual ascent from a lower form, not necessarily an ape, and that he is still making progress although rather slow.

Professor Hill-Tout, who is an Anglican clergyman, has been writing and lecturing on anthropological subject for many years. In his lecture yesterday he did not mention religion but tomorrow he will speak twice, in the morning at the Cathedral and in the evening at St. Peter's, when he will doubtless deal with the religious aspect of his subject.

Without venturing to take any part in a controversy, we may suggest that the subject is very interesting and one that is well worthy of the closest study. Making caustic remarks about those who think differently from ourselves does not solve the problem. Professor Hill-Tout tackles it from the scientific aspect and yet does not relinquish any of his religious convictions, or at any rate any that really matter.

EXPULSION OF THE REBELS

According to the despatches received today, Premier Tolmie is about to arise in his might and expel the rebels from the Conservative camp. He will adopt strong arm methods and will insist that those who profess and call themselves Conservatives shall follow in his footsteps or worship at his shrine.

It will be interesting to watch developments, for the rebellion seems to have become deep-rooted in Vancouver and even in Victoria there have been many murmurings and upheavals.

ALL IN SAME BOAT

Sometimes Prince Rupert people speak as if they thought this was the only place in the world where times were bad. That is because they have not been outside. People who have visited other parts of the country return impressed with the fact that we are holding our own as well as any other city.

While it is extremely difficult if not impossible for fishermen to sell their product at six and three cents and continue in the business, we received word only this week from Saskatchewan that farmers were in some places getting only six cents a dozen for eggs. Purchasers in most cases prefer a dozen fresh eggs to a pound of halibut.

Many business people find that they have not anything like made expenses this year, laborers have been out of work or on part time. In fact, there are difficulties everywhere and among all classes of people. All are in pretty much the same boat.

It is useless to grumble for that never helps anybody. All we can do is to carry on in the best possible manner until conditions improve. Easy times have passed and we now have to face conditions as they are instead of looking back.

SEA HERO IN FILMS

Capt. Matt Peasley Going to Sea in Command of Moving Picture Expedition

SEATTLE, May 30:— Captain Ralph (Matt) Peasley is going to sea again.

But the tall, robust old sailorman, one of the most romantic figures of the ocean lanes, known in every Pacific Coast port and hero of Peter B. Kyne's stories of the sea, will not pace the decks of some dancing square rigger running before a heavy breeze for distant climes.

Captain Peasley, who first came to the Pacific Ocean in 1888 after several years' at sea along the Maine Coast, will head a whaling expedition into Alaskan waters, starting from Seattle July 1.

In years past this port has seen sturdy steam "killer boats" sail for the northern whaling grounds for oil, bone and fertilizer. The expedition Captain Peasley will join is of a different sort. Its members will hunt whales, not with harpoons, however, but with cameras. The "cargo" they hope to bring back will consist of reels of motion pictures and stills of the playful finbacks enjoying themselves in their native haunts between Glacier Bay and Mount Fairweather, near Cordova.

Snap of Canvas

The snap of canvas filling before a breeze will not be lacking on this voyage of the old master for a 45-foot auxiliary sloop Linda, is being outfitted here for the cruise.

Captain Peasley will be master of the vessel with a crew of young scientists, including F. W. Schmoer, organizer of the expedition and naturalist of the Puget Sound Academy of Science, Seattle; Samuel Harby, Columbia University, New York; Leonard Jones, Bellingham, Wash., science student; H. L. Seeger, a science instructor in a private school here, and three Seattle school boys.

The old sea veteran commands numerous sailing vessels, the last being the Vigilant. He also commanded the schooner-yacht Sanwan, owned by Frank Moran, Seattle, having left that vessel at Santa Barbara.

Twenty Years Ago

In Prince Rupert

There was a storm in the city council last night over the work of the city engineer's department. Ald. S. M. Newton declared that nearly everything the department had done was wrong while Ald. C. B. Clayton engaged in a stirring defence of the department. During one of Ald. Newton's long diatribes, Mayor William Manson got disgusted and left the chamber.

George Mitchell Off For Corsica

Big Fortune Awaits Local Man If He Can Only Get It

George Mitchell, well known Prince Rupert young man, expects to sail on the steamer Elk Maru on Tuesday, June 9, for Corsica, having received a cablegram this morning that he had fallen heir to his uncle's estate which includes several oldtime castles, a great deal of acreage, a vineyard, and cash and bonds amounting to more than one million dollars in Canadian coin.

The cablegram from executors of the estate mentions only one possible flaw in the way of George getting complete control of the estate and requests that he bring with him to Corsica, "Bill" Plommer, native Corsican, who as teller in a Corsican bank several years ago was purported to know of another mysterious relative.

Mr. Mitchell is cleaning up odds and ends in his local business affairs connected with the Big Bay Lumber Co. and Mr. Plommer has arranged for a leave of absence from the local high school for the remainder of the present term. George says that, although he may have come into millions he will bring them back to Rupert with him and will probably present the city and local lovers of sport with the finest ball park in the province, a hobby of his for several years.

George Mitchell, in an interview with a News representative, told the true story of his life, breaking into tears at the conclusion. He said in part: "My real name is Dr. Arbutus Budd, and for a time I was proprietor of a New York beauty shop. Failure of society leaders to meet their obligations promptly put me in an embarrassing financial position. I stole passage on a steamer to Corsica where I got a job with the League of Nations, and there for the first time I learned that I had a rich uncle. I pleaded with him to help me get back to my native heath, but he refused me and I had to go to work. However, seems that in his declining years he forgave me and I am now about to pass from the coffee and doughnut stage to a lobster salad diet."

Everybody excited over George's inheritance? Well, it will be for just one night and one afternoon at the Capitol Theatre, Tuesday, June 9. Mr. Mitchell is the leading man in Channing Pollock's great musical comedy, "The Beauty Shop," which is being presented under the auspices of Prince Rupert Lodge B. P. O. Elks.

PROFESSOR DECLARES THAT WHETHER WE LIKE IT OR NOT MEN AND APES ARE DESCENDED FROM THE SAME ANCESTORS (Continued from page one)

work has been discovered and studied particularly in the Doudogne Valley. He had himself examined the wonderful paintings and etchings made by these people in the caves and had seen their bone and stone tools. Most of the animals they pictured were now extinct.

Then came the Celtic or Alpine people with round heads who brought the first knowledge of metals, their work being in bronze.

Predecessors Mention was made of the predecessors of the Cro-Magnons, such as the Neandethalers, the Heidelberg man, the Piltdown man and farthest back of all known, the Pithecanthropus Erectus of the Island of Java, a man about half way in development between the apes and man as he is today.

One of the most important links in the chain of evidence in favor of the theory which he propounded was the blood reaction test, showing that the blood of the apes and man were practically the same.

Concluding, Professor Hill-Tout suggested that the fact that man was closely related to the rest of creation "should make us all kind to animals."

A vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. A. E. Bazett-Jones and seconded by Mrs. C. E. Cullin.

Tea was served at the close of the lecture by members of the executive of the club, Mrs. Bazett-Jones, Miss Palmer, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Rice, Mrs. Good, Mrs. Stuart, Miss Rothwell and Mrs. Russell Smith. Mrs. Cade and Mrs. Woodland poured.
