MAY BAN PYJAMAS

Growing Feeling Against Them Develops in Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 8.—The Woman's Page editor of The Winnipeg Free Press writes:

"With certain cities in the States rousing themselves against the pandemic of pyjamas which has swept, not only beach and boulevard, but which has marked as its own hostesses and guests at every sort of function, there is a growing opinion in Winnipeg in favor of banning pyjama parades on the public streets.

"So far, the only thing which has prevented a deputation waiting upon the city council to discuss the feasibility of a law against pyjamas on Portage is the fact that women's organizations cease functioning during the holiday season, and there is little chance of discussing concerted action until activities resume in the classrooms when school opens in September, there will be a definite move on the part of women's organizations to prevent it, however, executive members said.

"Several women interviewed expressed themselves in strong terms against the new vogue, declaring it was 'perfectly scandalous' to see girls clad in such garb on city streets. Some felt the time had come to take official action as the style of pyjamas adopted verged in some cases, on the indecent, but others thought the only move was to arouse public opinion against the bad taste exhibited and so prevail upon parents to keep their girls from wearing them. There is a general feeling that the younger generation are the chief offenders, as older girls and women limit their wearing of pyjamas to the beaches or their homes. Many women see in this phase of the pyjama craze the main reason for taking action, as they regard the extreme styles favored by the youngsters a menace to their morals.

"When pyjamas for outdoor wear aside from beach costumes, were first shown they were merely dress adaptations with a skirt for each leg, and as such were all right, if one varied for that sort of thing," one woman said in discussing the matter recently. "But the more extravagant the style the more popular pyjamas have become with the younger girls, until today some youngsters are a disgrace." Shop managers confirmed this statement to the extent of admitting that they were doing a flourishing business in the more bizarre types. Big patterns, low cut necks, fitted hips, are the popular types. Some managers declared that no one had ever been taken up so universally as this one for summer pyjamas, and that the most daring styles were the most popular.
