

END THAT COUGH!

Peps will end it! Simply dissolve Peps tablets in your mouth. The Pine forest vapors which are thus released are breathed down to the remotest parts of the air passages and lungs, soothing and healing the inflamed membranes and bringing quick relief from that irritating and exhausting cough.

Mrs. Luther Brown, of Wilson's Beach, N.B. writes: "For two years I was troubled with a very bad cough. At night it became worse and I coughed incessantly and could not sleep. I tried every remedy I had ever heard of, but nothing did me any good until I used Peps. Even the first few tablets gave me relief. I continued their use, with the result that my cough has entirely disappeared."

These breatheable Peps are also unqualified for colds, sore throat, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma and chest and lung troubles. 50c. box, 1 for $1.25. All dealers or Peps Co., Toronto.

LAUNCH SHIPS WITH ENGINES

Machinery Will be Put in Steamers at Victoria Before They Take to Water.

The two steel freighters being built by the Harbor Marine Company for the Canadian Government will be launched early in the year with both the boilers and engines installed, if present plans are carried into effect, says the Victoria Colonist.

Naval Architect Clark, who is in charge of the work at the yard, stated yesterday that this would mean a centralization of the work which would not be possible if the ships were taken to an out-fitting wharf. It would mean a running back and forth between the present plant and the out-fitting point, and would be more difficult to oversee, while under present plans it will be possible to use the equipment in the yard for making the installation of machinery and the construction and installation work may proceed together. Expenses will be lower.

While as far as Mr. Clark is aware this launching with engines and boilers installed as new to Canada with ships as big as the 8,000 tonners being constructed here, he can give out of his experiences in shipbuilding stories of launchings in other lands under these conditions. He does admit, though, that it will be unusual to attempt the feat with vessels of this size.

Mr. Clark has launched smaller ships with steam up but does not like this method as slight changes may take place in the hull during the progress down the ways into the water and during which piping might snap. To safeguard against this the connecting up will not be done in the local ships until after they are in the water.

Boilers and Engines. While it is the present plan to launch the steamers in the manner above, further contracts might make it necessary to launch quicker than expected, with the result that the installation of boilers and engines would have to be left until the hulls were launched and the ways vacated.

The boilers will come in knock-down form from the east and will be riveted up either at the V. M. D. or the Harbor Marine yard. They will then be rolled into the hulls, the big traveling crane handling some of the smaller parts. The engines will be moved into the ships through the sides also. Strikes in the east have held up the construction of the boilers and machinery.

Fine Job. Mr. Clark stated that he was ready to put the boilers and engines in place just as soon as they arrived. Staging is now being put up for the use of the workmen in erecting the frames which work will commence shortly. The great stern frame for the first hull is now being prepared and will be hoisted into place within a few days.

Pointing to the bottom plating on the more advanced of the hulls Mr. Clark remarked that the work could not be bettered in any part of the world. The men, he said, were doing a fine job, and he drew special attention to the rivetting that had been done. They were building in a sane manner and not throwing vessels together, as had been done in the States during the war. Work on one boat will be kept a little ahead of that on the other but launchings will not be far apart. The ships will be completely fitted out inside and practically ready to take on cargo when they slide into the harbor early next year.
