mankind. What could be a greater cause for giving thanks to the Father than this momentous situation? But the work is only just begun. There is much of righteous praying to be done, much of prayerful vigil to be kept, to insure that the great peace movement which like a beautiful paean of praise sweeping over the hearts of mankind, lose not its momentum or be defeated in its perfect purpose. So long as evil seems to persist, so long will vigilence be the watchword of success.
