United States Shipping Board Suggests Violation of Coastwise Laws

The United States Shipping Board, according to dispatches from Washington, proposes in its annual report to turn certain Prince Rupert fish business to United States ships. According to the dispatches, some shipments of fish caught in Alassels and sold to a Canadian comstorage vessel and some of it, at least, thereafter exported to the United States and admitted free of duty as the product of United States fisheries. The question presented is whether the shipment
