MARKETS

ARE WEAK

Prices of Practically All Commodities Show Decreases Just Now

A distinctly downward trend in the prices of apples is to be noted on the local retail market. One of the principal factors contributing to the weakness of the apple market is that many prairie orders have been cancelled, turning large numbers of apples back on the British Columbia market. That is why some apples labelled "T. Eaton Co." may have been sold from local stores. The apples were not secured from or through Eaton's but had been labelled for that company before orders for it were cancelled. A new shipment of "C" Grade McIntosh Reds has just been received here. Although it is exceptionally late for this variety, they are reported to be in first-class shape.

Much to the comfort of Dr. McCoy's disciples, the price of oranges is also down noticeably. A nice size of family orange can now be secured for 30c or 35c per dozen.

The price of eggs is very weak and a further drop from already low prices for this season of the year is expected this week.

The meat market also displays weakness with reductions in the price of practically all lines.
