Vancouver Lions Still at Top of Pacific Coast League-Tied With Buckaroos Last

PORTLAND, Oregon, Feb. 6-The Vancouver Lions played a two-goal draw with the Portland Buckaroos in the Pacific Coast Hockey League here last night. The Lions took a two-to-one lead in the first period and it looked like it was to bay a free scoring game but the Bucks tied it up in the second session and the tightly played third and overtime periods were scoreless.

The referee was accused of making ridiculous decisions in favor of Vancouver and was pelted with! snowballs by the Portland fans.

The Lions are now leading by two points, the Buckaroos being tied with the Seattle Eskimos for second place or cellar position The Lions will play the Eskimos in Seattle tonight.

A miniature Golf League has been former at Anyox and the first games will take place this month. The teams, comprising four players each, are: McColl's Boiler Shop, MacConnachie's Store Cavalier's. Mine. Coke Plant and Transportation. It is a rather unique league and is expected to provide plenty of practice as we!! as amusement for the golfers.

Basketball league activities are still going strong at Anyox with keener interest steadily developin, as the season advances. There are Senior, Ladies' and School Leagues all of which are turning out a good brand of hoop play for big crowd of smelter town fans. It is to be regretted that there may be no intertown hoop games between Anyox and Prince Rupert this winter on account of the failue of local organization this season.

Oxford players are here seen making their first goal in a hockey game playe dagainst Cambridge in an inter-varsity match recently played at St. Moritz, Switzerland.

Patrick Hepburn Elected in East Toxteth With Majority of Over Eleven Thousand

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 6:- The traditionally Conservative division of East Toxteth yesterday returned Patrick Buchan Hepburn, Conservative, in a by-election by a majority of more than eleven thousand votes, the greatest recorded in the constituency since the Great War.

The seat was vacated when Hon. The Seat was vacated when Hon. Henry Mond was elevated to the A peerage on the death of his father, the late Lord Melchett.

While the total of the Conservative vote was about the same as at the last election, the Labor vote fell off by more than four thousand.

An opportunity was offered for questions. It was suggested by Paul Tickoles that it would be of great various centres to have samples constantly accessible so that prospectors might frequently examine them closely. It was thought that in some way the Department might see fit to assist the industry by having a full set of samples accessible every day to all interested, in some reading room. The samples would not require to be large. They might be kept in suitable glass cases where the magnifying glass could be used in the study. About twenty were present.

Evening Lecture

The topic of last night's discourse was rock structures. The structures known as dykes are fine or coarse grained. They lie in tabular or vertical or intermediate positions and invariably cross-cut the general stratification at some angle. The hearers were reminded that limestone, in whatever form it may seem to appear, is of the character of a bed or stratum and should not be confused with the dyke structure. A sill is an intrusion along bedding planes and is parellel to them. A laccolith is an igneous intrusion that spreads out between sedimentary beds in lense-like fashion. It is buried unless erosion shows it up. A stock is an irregular and more or less chimney like outcrop of batholith or the deep basic rock while a batholith is a vast outcrop of the deep igneous rock. Lava flows were classified into vesicular, scoraceous numic and amygdaloidal showing different degrees of sponge-like structure. Porphyry was defined as rock showing large crystals in a fine rock ground-mass.

The speaker followed this with a description of the structures of sedimentary rocks referring to the laminated beds, the synclines, the Triple Island-Strong southerly anticlines the monoclines and domes. The matter of strike and Langara-Overcast, light easterly dip and disconformity, and joints and faults and throws and slips Dead Tree Point-Cloudy, fresh and drags were described and the southeast wind; barometer, 29.88; marker alread with reference to a
