OCEAN FALLS DELAYS USE OF CAR TRANSFER

Amount Shipped This Way Not Yet Enough to Warrant Outlay, Says Manager.

OCEAN FALLS, Dec. 18.—"Until our overland business develops we will not install the car ferry system between here and Rupert, although plans are already prepared." This statement was made to a Daily News representative by Manager Burdon of the Pacific Mills, Ocean Falls, on Tuesday. He went on to explain that the bulk of the business done by the big plant called for shipment to the Antipodes on down the coast. There had been a great scarcity of tonnage, said the executive. Asked if he could utilize wooden sailing vessels—should they be built in British Columbia in the future, Mr. Burdon replied that the high insurance rates on either straight sailing ships or auxiliaries made their use by the mill prohibitive. The lower freight rates did not counterbalance this feature. The fact that sailers were so much slower would not in itself prove a drawback, he went on. No sailing vessels or auxiliaries produced during wartime have yet loaded at Ocean Falls. There are now approximately one thousand men employed there.

Mr. Burdon reported that timber was now being obtained anywhere from one to eighty miles from the mills. No further expansion is planned at the present time.

LIQUOR CASE IS DISMISSED

Bannier Could Have Been Given
Heavier Sentence Under the Indian Act, if Magistrate Desired.

At the regular meeting of the Police Commissioners held last night in the council chamber, the Bannier liquor case was again resurrected. A letter was read from Indian Agent Perry explaining the action of Constable Watkinson, prosecuting on behalf of the Department of Indian Affairs in this case. Constable Watkinson also had a letter himself in explanation.

The Police Commission had felt that this case against a person in business in the city limits had been taken away from the city police, the proper authorities to prosecute in the action. Mr. Perry said that although he was not directly intimate with the case, still he considered that Constable Watkinson's action was correct, for liquor had been supplied to Indians who come under the jurisdiction of the Indian Department.

Constable Watkinson, in his letter, stated that he was justified in prosecuting under the Indian Act and, at any rate, he was not entrusted with the working of the B. C. Prohibition Act, although he was always ready to assist city or government officers. The chief of police stated that although he had assisted in the case it was clearly Constable Watkinson's case as he had watched it for some time. When Bannier was brought the city solicitor had said that it was his opinion that the case belonged to the Indian Department.

After some discussion the letter was filed, the commissioners being satisfied with the information of Constable Watkinson that the guilty man could have received six months' imprisonment and a $300 fine for the offence under the Indian Act. The penalty inflicted on Bannier was in the hands of the magistrate.

It is the intention of the association ultimately to put in its own refrigeration plant, but for the present it is freezing a part of the fish purchased in the Seattle Port Commission's cold storage plant.
