FINE WORK IN RADIO

Son of Local Man Distinguishes Himself in Montreal With Short Wave

J. L. Miller, son of J. B. Miller of Prince Rupert, proprietor of the Montreal Importers, has his photograph on the front page of The Monitor, published in Montreal, and also there is published a column on the same page telling of his work in amateur short wave radio.

Mr. Miller is the proprietor of a retail radio store and has done some splendid work in helping to perfect radio. According to the story in the Monitor, he calls up his radio friends every morning before going to business and exchanges the time of day. Sometimes he sends greetings to New Zealand and at others to people in other countries. A few days ago he was talking with the U. S. navy off Catalina Island near San Francisco. He has many radio friends whom he has not seen in different parts of the world. He has been operating a short wave radio set since 1924 when he was president of the McGill University Radio Association.

SHE FEARED SHE'D NEVER RAISE HER BABY

The other day, amongst a batch of letters from Carnation cooking enthusiasts, came a happy, grateful note from a mother in Nelson, B.C., eager to tell other mothers about her good fortune.

"A few months ago," her letter ran, "my first baby arrived—the thinnest little specimen I ever expect to see—only 5 pounds, 15 ounces. From the first he was denied Nature's food and struggled along on a prepared formula, looking worse every week. At four weeks he weighed 3 ounces less than at birth. We were completely discouraged and feared we would never raise him.

"Finally Carnation Milk diluted with boiled water and sweetened with corn syrup was recommended by a splendid pediatrician. The change was miraculous. Today, at five months, three weeks, he weighs 17½ pounds and is the healthiest, happiest baby we could wish for."

Do you wonder that this mother is grateful to her physician and to Carnation Milk? Wouldn't it be a fortunate for babies if all mothers knew about the remarkable scientific discoveries which have proved that unsweetened evaporated milks like Carnation are the best possible milks for bottle-fed babies?

Nothing about my daily task makes me happier than the knowledge that Carnation Milk is doing such wonderful work in baby feeding. Doctors everywhere are using it—some of the most famous baby specialists in the land—and all agree that no other form of cow's milk can compare with it in easy digestibility, uniformity, and safety.

Carnation is so easy to digest because it is heat treated. That causes it to form very fine, soft curds in the baby's stomach, almost exactly like those formed by mother's milk. Then, too, it is homogenized, which breaks up the coarse fat globules into infinitely tiny ones which the baby easily assimilates.

In food value, scientists have found that this milk equals the finest bottled milk. It contains all the vitamins that any milk is depended on to supply, needing only the usual supplements, such as orange juice and cod-liver oil. In addition to all these good qualities, it is absolutely safe, free from germs that could cause disease.

I wish every mother with a tiny bottle-fed baby could hear about this wonderful milk. I'll be delighted to send you or any of your friends who may be interested, a new and very helpful book which tells the story. Ask for your free copy of "Baby-Feeding Simplified"—and, if you'd like to know about Carnation Milk for cooking, request the Carnation Cook Book. Address Carnation Co., Limited, 134 Abbott Street, Vancouver, B.C.
