LIGHTER THAN AIR

The announcement that the R-100, which made a flight to Canada last year, is being sold for scrap may be taken CRIBBAGE to indicate that the British government, for the time being at least, is abandoning its experiments with "lighter than air" machines. The country, which has shown the world the way so far as "heavier than air" machines are concerned, has almost as consistently failed in her experiments with the dirigible. The crowning failure was the tragic destruction of the defective R-101, sister ship to the R-100, in France last summer. Since then, it has been freely predicted that Britain would quit the "lighter than Germany has triumphed consistently so far as "lighter than air" is concerned. That country succeeded during the war with its Zeppelins and later with the great Graf Zeppelin, which has been the most successful dirigible in the history of aviation. The United States with its "Akron" is now making a bid for dirigible supremacy. The "Los Angeles," of course, was a European built machine which Elks was purchased by United States.

EXTENSION OF P. G. E.

Careful consideration and study of the conditions of Eagles this poor white elephant goes to show that to extend it to K. Columbus Prince George will cause it only to have another coat of Swifts whitewash, declares the Kamloops Sentinel, in an editorial on the proposal to extend the Pacific Great Eastern Railway. It does not make any profit now over running expenses, with an abnormally high freight rate. It is still classed as a railway under construction, therefore, it makes its own freight rates, which are from 40 to 300 per cent higher than could be charged were it governed by the Fine Sheet at Morse Creek-Oliver board of railway commissioners for Canada. As soon as it reaches Prince George it will become a finished railway, according to the original plans; therefore it will come under the jurisdiction of the railway board and freight rates Creek is in excellent shape for and O. Considering the extra help and more rolling stock that will be required the answer must be most emphatically no!

SPORT CHAT

Dr. William G. Anderson, director of the Yale Gymnasium, foresees the decline of football and the growth of the so-called minor sports to the point where they become self supporting. Football's popularity, in his opinion, has reached its peak $5.00 in the United States, and a gradual 10c decline in public interest may be expected. "Football,' 'he says, "has 3.00 had its seven fat years, and usually seven lean years follow, you know. $6.00 Like the Greeks and the Romans, 9.00 the public likes spectacles. That's why football has grown so popular. We are in the threshold of a new 1.40 era in athletics. The future will see .02 less emphasis on organized sports .25 and more attention paid to the phy-15 sical training of the individual stu-

Should Be Inculcated From Childhood, Interior Paper Says in Editorial

The tragic death of Mr. Birnie Cardinals-L. Lowe, Cath. Irvine, when he was shot and killed near Pebbles Stone, Vic Krikevsky and Smithers while out hunting, calls to mind the necesity for extreme care in the use of firearms, says an editorial in the Burns Lake Observer. Few have been the accidents of this nature in Central British Columbia but on Vancouver Island and many other places frequented by hunters and sportsmen the occurrences are by no means rare. Care in the use of firearms should be impressed on our growing youth. Even with air guns and toys children should be taught to observe all the rules of best practice. It has been our lot to note children pointing toy guns and air guns at other children and also using air guns for shooting around the streets of the village. This should be discouraged by every possible means and parents should impress on their children the need of circumspect action. Even toys can be habit-
